(This is the fourth of a series of dispatches written after an exhaustive study of the prohibition question in which President Harding, Prohibition Commissioner Roy Harney, Assistant Attorney General Willebrandt, Wayne
H. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League, Captain W. H. Stanton of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition and other leaders submitted to private interviews with the writer and gave their candid opinions on law enforcement and the outlook.)

Washington—Is prohibition expensive? And how has the treasury overcome the $500,000,000 loss in taxes which used to be collected on beverages? Does the government get any tax revenue out of the liquor illegally sold by "bootleggers" and does it collect any income taxes from the "bootleggers" themselves?

These questions go to the root of the problem and while it is true that from a moral standpoint a negative answer to each would still fail to deter the crusader who believes the greatest good of the greatest number cannot be measured in dollars and cents, there is a widespread interest in these material phases.

First of all prohibition enforcement itself is not expensive but really profitable financially to Uncle Sam. Nine million dollars was appropriated by congress to enforce the Volstead law.
The treasury balance sheet on prohibition for the fiscal year ending last June was as follows:

Federal fines collected during the year, which means double the amount of the tax rate that used to be imposed on liquor sales when the traffic was legal. This eighty million was held up in the courts for awhile until a Supreme court decision made clear the fact that the old internal revenue laws had not been repealed by the Volstead act. Now the treasury department is arranging for hearings so that interested parties may present their claims for relief before trial proceedings are started whereby the government seizes all the property of the delinquent tax-payers.	$2,791,305.21
Amounts paid in compromise suits	1,733,622.80
Amounts collected in taxes and penalties not including taxes on legal manufacture and sale of distilled spirits and intoxicating liquors for medicinal uses	230,364.14
Amount of bonds on which action has been taken toward forfeiture	3,000,000.00
	$7,770,332.15

GOVERNMENT MAKING MONEY

On top of this are accumulated fines of approximately $80,000,000 in penalties for violation of the internal revenue laws, which means double the amount of the tax rate that used to be imposed on liquor sales when the traffic was legal. This eighty million was held up in the courts for awhile until a Supreme court decision made clear the fact that the old internal revenue laws had not been repealed by the Volstead act. Now the treasury department is arranging for hearings so that interested parties may present their claims for relief before trial proceedings are started whereby the government seizes all the property of the delinquent tax-payers.

WALLACE WANTS LENROOT FARM BILL TO PASS

To Substitute It With Capper Measure Would Be Offer- ing Farmer "Stone"

By Associated Press
Washington — Belief that the Len-root-Anderson bill as it was passed by the senate offers a satisfactory basis for a real rural credit system which would promote more stable farm production and more orderly marketing, was expressed today by Secretary Wallace of the agricultural department in a letter to Representative Anderson, Republican, Minnesota, co-author of the measure.
Declaring he could see no strong objection to the enactment of the Capper bill, which also received senate approval recently and is now pending before a house committee, Mr. Wallace said that to offer it was a "rural credit bill, or as a substitute for the Len-root-Anderson bill would give the farmers of the nation the best reason for feeling that in reply to their request for bread they had been offered a stone."

ference called by the committee on the establishment of a permanent organization for the improvement of the law to consider the formation of an American law institute. Primarily the

FORD FLIRTING WITH MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS

Detroit—Possibility that Henry Ford might be endorsed as the party's presidential candidate in 1924, overshadowed all other business before Michigan Democrats when they met in state convention here Friday to adopt a platform and nominate candidates for minor state offices to be filled at the spring election.
Some of the party leaders frankly expressed the fear the proposed Ford endorsement might cause a split and turn the convention from a jollification over the party's success last November into a divided camp.

REACH TRUCE IN SHIP BILL FILIBUSTER

Measure Regarded "Dead" As Other Matters Are To Be Taken Up

By Associated Press
Washington—An end of the senate shipping bill fight appears near at hand Friday through an agreement made behind closed doors for a temporary armistice in the filibuster which has blocked all business since Monday.

In executive session the senate agreed to adjourn Friday at 6 o'clock, take up minor bills for two hours Saturday and then proceed with the shipping bill with the possibility of a vote in the meantime on a motion for recommitment. After the agreement administration leaders conceded that the ship bill was "as good as dead" not later than Saturday night. It was said, the vote on recommitment would come, and the bill would be "interred with proper obsequies."

The plans for a break in the filibuster an abandonment of a night session Friday night were made after a conference at the white house between President Harding and Senator Curtis of Kansas, assistant Republican leader. The senate, under its agreement last night went into executive session to consider confirmation of nominations on reconvening at 11 o'clock and an understanding for the break up of the filibuster at least until late Saturday, was quickly reached. Willingness of administration leaders to call off a night session and spend two hours on minor bills was regarded by ship bill opponents as a sign of dissolution.

END OF FILIBUSTER IN HOUSE

Washington—Although Republican leaders had ended the filibuster started in the house Wednesday by announcing they would not press at this time the bill proposing government purchase of the Cape Cod head, the legislative jam in that body had been intensified Friday by the time consumed in the filibuster.
The program was further complicated by the prospect of delay in securing action on the alien property bill, the unfinished business before the house Friday. A number of representatives were prepared to offer amendments authorizing the return of all property sold during the war from enemy aliens instead of only the smaller trusts as now proposed in the measure.

The number of purchasers of the company's securities was placed by an official of the organization at 30,

against the rule of Benjamin Purnell of the House of David, the Benton Harbor religious colony; the looting of the St. Joseph building, headquarters of of $300,000 supposed to be in the building and the setting up of a new colony, to be known as the "League of Na-

LA FOLLETTE WANTS NATIONAL GUARD

Opposed To Abolition, He Advises In Statement From Washington

Madison—Senator Robert M. La-Follette is opposed to abolition of the Wisconsin National guard, he advised Friday in a statement issued at Washington. He declares that the "agreed with Governor Blaine that such a policy would be unwise."

"I believe that in these times when we are making every effort to curtail the expenses of the state government we can wisely cut down the appropriations for military purposes without in any way impairing the efficiency of the National guard or its legitimate functions," he said.
"As any one knows I have long opposed extravagant expenditures for military purposes in peacetime. To abolish the National guard at this time, however, would give the militarists of the nation an opportunity to urge an increase in our standing army and to augment our federal expenditures for war purposes."
"The Wisconsin guard should be efficiently and economically administered and in no case should it be employed as it is often used elsewhere to aid the powerful corporate interests in oppressing their employees. The people of Wisconsin may be confident that so long as the state remains under progressive control, our national guard will not be misused to promote private interests at the expense of the public."

GLENWAY MAXON, JR. ON WAY TO REFORMATORY

Milwaukee — Still maintaining the same stoical attitude that he had exhibited throughout the ordeal of his trial and conviction, Glenway Maxon, Jr., consulting engineer and inventor, left for Green Bay reformatory Friday at 7:15 in company with eleven other Milwaukee-co prisoners.
Roused at 6 a. m. to permit of an early breakfast at the County jail and hasty preparations for departure the prisoners filed out of the prison before 7 o'clock for the Union station.
Perhaps the only flicker of expression that crossed Maxon's face, was when a deputy sheriff snapped the ring of a handcuff about his wrist, and then attached the other end to the arm of

Think Barber 'Ponzi' Ended His Own Life

By Associated Press
Chicago—While authorities in various parts of the United States Friday continued checking up the operations of Joseph M. Martino, alias Joseph Blata who rose from a barber to a buyer of banks and whose financial losses were reported to have caused deaths approximating $501,000, reports here indicated he might have committed suicide.

That theory found its inception in a letter written by Martino from some point in Texas or Mexico to Abraham Goldman, Chicago, father-in-law and who, according to investigators, supplied the missing man with funds in a greater or lesser amount.
The letter said to contain a minute account of the fugitive's financial expenses since its beginning here in Chicago was reported to indicate that Martino might end his life so that creditors could realize on his life insurance policies totaling $100,000.
Today, Frank L. Taylor, a former railroad fireman, finally advanced to president of the First National Bank of Warren, Mass., by Martino, faced arraignment in the Federal court here, following the reported discovery of a $213,000 shortage in accounts of the Warren institution.

SENATE CERTAIN TO SNAG TAX BILL

By Associated Press
Madison—The tax problem before the legislature is far from settled despite the favorable report of the assembly tax committee on the Dahl general income tax bill, and the decided probability that this proposal will be majority. Rumblings in the senate indicate rough sailing ahead for any revenue proposal making alterations in the existing tax laws.

ORDER MARTIAL LAW IN BOCHUM AS BLOOD FLOWS

French Fire Into Jeering Crowd, Killing German And Wounding Two
By Associated Press
Duesseldorf—Blood has again been shed in the Ruhr in the course of a French "digging in" process. One German civilian was killed and two others seriously wounded at Bochum Thursday when two French soldiers fired upon a crowd that had gathered to watch the occupation of the Law Courts building. Observers said that the shooting was done by Poles who were obviously irritated by the jeers of the bystanders.
The decision of Premier's Poincare transportation conditions. Although General Fayot asserts that the railroads already operating under French and Belgian supervision are doing

PIONEERS CHOOSE W. F. SAECKER AS NEW PRESIDENT

Old Settlers Showered With Praise At Annual County Gathering

Hoary pioneers, together with their sons and daughters, gathered to renew acquaintances at the fifty-second meeting of Outagamie County Pioneers association in Odd Fellows hall Thursday, Washington's birthday.

They refreshed their memories of "them days" that are "gone forever" as on every anniversary and visualized the old blazed trail, the woodsman's axe, the hunter's firearms, the homesteader's plow, and all the other factors of pioneer days, not forgetting the historical yoke of oxen.

Old settlers sang the days of "Auld Lang Syne," speakers paid tribute feelingly to the departed, and all ate and drank the health of the living. By way of refilling the rapidly dwindling ranks of the older settlers, the names of 25 new members were added to the roll as an assurance that the association will be kept alive even when the very last of the pioneers shall be no more.

RE-ELECT ALL BUT ONE

The guiding hand of the organization for the next 12 months will be W. F. Saecker, who succeeds former Judge Henry Kreis as president. No other change was made in the directorate or the executive committee. W. M. Roblee was elected secretary-treasurer for the twenty-fourth time. A. W. Priest was re-elected vice president, and W. F. Saecker, George P. McGowan, Richard Miller and Judge John Bottenssek succeeded themselves on the board of directors. The elections were held in the forenoon session.

Secretary Roblee was absent on account of illness and his place was temporarily supplied by F. E. Harriman. The only two surviving members of the 133 who signed the call for the initial meeting in 1872, Charles Wolcott and Charles F. Briggs, who is also the oldest Appleton settler, were likewise unable to be present.

Following the usual dinner consisting of basket lunches that had been pooled and of which everyone ate as much as he dared and then wished for capacity for more, a program of addresses and musical entertainment was carried out.

Singing was led by Mrs. Marie LeBoehm, with Mrs. John Graef as accompanist. Miss Dorothy Murphy also entertained the gathering with several piano selections, and Mrs. LeBoehm sang several solo accompanied by Mrs. Murphy. Miss LeBoehm's amusing the audience with a humorous recitation, entitled "When Papa's Sick."

PRAYERS FOR TRIBUTE

Invocation was said by the Rev. E. W. Wright who gave thanks for the lessons to be learned from the privations and struggles of the early settlers and prayed that their indomitable spirit might abound.

Mr. Kreis, the retiring president, welcomed the old friends of a half century. He recalled that there was a time when he knew every man he passed on the street, which is impossible now because of the changed conditions and the growth of the community. He related a few of his own experiences of pioneer days, one of which was his first experience with a yoke of oxen. He regretted the absence of the secretary and C. P. Tigue, the oldest member, as well as that of those members who are no longer living.

"Since our meeting last year," Mr. Kreis said, "our list of absentees has grown. As time passes, we are passing with it. I can say that when our time comes, it will find us ready, trusting that we have done our duty and that they may say after us, 'This world is better because they have been with us.'"

The principal address on the program was that of Professor Francis M. Ingler, who spoke on "Pioneers and Pikers."

"The difference between a pioneer and a piker," he stated, "is that a pioneer is one who pioneers and a piker is one who pikes. The pioneer leads the piker follows. The pioneer breaks the ground; the piker plows the fields after the work is done. The pioneer blazes the trail; the piker enjoys the benefits."

"Pioneer spirit has made the great central west what it is. Without it this region would still be a wilderness. It was this same pioneer spirit that moved Columbus to strike out for new lands, while the spirit of the piker wanted to throw him overboard. Had it not been for a Columbus, this country might have been many years younger."

The speaker followed the same train of thought in his references to the Pilgrim Fathers seeking American shores as a haven of religious freedom; to the leadership of George Washington whose birthday was observed Thursday and the fathers of the Revolution who gave the world the idea that political liberty rests upon the consent of the governed; to the spirit of Lincoln which gave to 4,000,000 slaves individual liberty.

Prof. Ingler spoke of the World war as an "unfinished job," and that blood shed has not made the world safe for democracy, and suggested that there are better ways of settling differences between countries.

MUST FORGET SELF

In condemning the spirit of lawlessness in the country today, the speaker concluded, "The world is never safe for democracy until we learn to personally for the good of the whole."

"A Comparison Taxes of Pioneer Days and Present Times" was the subject of an address by Mayor Henry Reuter who gave some reasons why taxes are high.

"In looking for the cause of high taxes," he said, "we find that while no one wants high taxes, everybody wants the things that make high taxes. The movement toward high taxes is based upon a natural law. To operate a government, it is necessary to purchase supplies, employ labor, etc. The increased cost of these things is testified to by every businessman, farmer, workman and housekeeper. If you cannot run your business or your household with the money you used a year ago, why expect the government to do so?"

The changing character and the increased activity of city government preclude the possibility that taxes will ever be lower the mayor declared.

A sketch of the history of the pioneer association, prepared by W. M. Roblee, was read by F. E. Harriman. He reminded the members that during the 51 years of the association, not one meeting was ever deferred on account of bad weather or for any other cause.

NEED NEW MEMBERS

"There are only a limited number of old settlers now living in the city and county," he observed, "therefore, in order to keep this association in healthy condition, we must invite the middle aged, or even younger people for membership so that the gatherings may continue. The early settlers sowed that we might reap, and as we plant the fruits they planted, we thankfulness should plant the pioneer spirit for others."

Judge A. M. Spencer was called upon for an impromptu speech and responded in paying high tribute to the real pioneers of this vicinity, none of whom are still living. He compared the high ideals and virtues of those days to the lawlessness of the present generation. He complained of the discouraging efforts to check liquor law violations, and advocated laws providing for severe sentences.

"The law must be drastic," he asserted, "and must be enforced with a firm hand. If not, God pity the rising generation."

Condolences were expressed by the association to the families of the following members who died last year: William C. Perry, Peter R. Schmidt, Mrs. Bell Priest, William N. Grasey, Alexander Lund, John Downey and John E. Sanborn.

A vote of thanks was tendered to all those who took part in the program.

INTERTROOP SCOUT RALLY TO BE HELD AT H. S. SATURDAY

Youths Are Drilling To Win Honors In Series Of Competitive Events

More than 350 boy scouts will take part in the Intertroop rally at Appleton high school gymnasium at 7 o'clock Saturday evening. The program will be conducted on the point system for each of the nine sections. The boy scout office has been receiving a steady stream of boys who wish to brush up on one phase of scout ing or another by heading all the instructions they can get.

The rally will open with a general inspection of troops based on attendance at the rally in percentage of boys present in comparison with those who belong to the troop. Inspection of appearance including shoes, hair, cleanliness, clothes and buttons and conduct of the boys through the evening. Inspection will be followed by drill in which the boys will be ranked according to the way they respond to the following commands: "Fall in, right dress, right march, about face, count off, right and left step, scout salute, forward march, rear march and halt."

Much attention has been given by the boys to the final portion of the program when each troop will put on a stunt. These will be original, planned and worked out by the boys themselves. Other parts of the program include first aid work with four men to a squad, a speed event in knot tying by teams of eight boys, semaphore signalling, horse and rider race, tug of war and making tire by friction.

Announce Program Later

Because many of the high school teachers have been ill and all the grades could not be put on the report cards which were given to the students on Friday morning, there was no announcement of an honor roll for this quarter. As soon as the grades are completed, the roll will be announced.

Mrs. H. C. Steidl of Menasha called on Appleton friends Thursday.

In Hard Lines

"I could not work at all and had to take to my bed with a high fever due to intestinal indigestion, passes in my stomach and pain in my right side. I had spent my last cent for doctors and medicine, which gave me no relief. I was in despair. A lodge brother gave me a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy, and the first dose relieved me. Thanks to this medicine I am now in the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation, which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For Sale at all druggists adv.

BOOTLEGGERS PAY HEAVILY TO UNCLE SAM

Fines Exceed Costs Of Enforcement, According To Lawrence Survey

paying its way so far as federal expenditure is concerned, it may be said with truth that in the states it is making money.

OHIO IS AHEAD

Take the case of Ohio, for example, which spent $216,000 in enforcement of prohibition and collected $2,600,000 in fines. This item was divided between the state and the county treasuries so that the communities which did the prosecuting received about $1,360,000 last year out of prohibition cases.

There is no way of telling exactly the sums that have been paid by the treasury in income tax cases. One case is pending in which a "bootlegger" made out an income tax return for $6,000 when he had in reality an income of $3,000,000. Curiously enough the department of justice in some instances has been unable to get the evidence to convict individuals guilty of participating in illegal liquor traffic, but has managed to tip off the treasury department so that investigation could be made whether fraudulent income tax returns were made out.

Prosecutions have been instituted for perjury in making out false income tax returns when in reality there wasn't enough proof available to get a conviction under the Volstead law. Mrs. Mary Walker Wilbrund, assistant attorney general, has direct supervision not only over the prohibition cases but the investigation of income tax frauds so the two frequently go hand in hand.

FEAR INCOME TAX LAW

Usually the "bootleggers" are afraid of the criminal features of the income tax law. They may be able to escape with a fine or a light sentence on a Volstead law violation but an income tax fraud is a much more serious matter. Many "bootleggers" fear that if they deposit their money in the banks the government will detect the size of their incomes. Some keep their cash in safety deposit vaults but what they do not realize is that the government has many ways of keeping track of purchases. Most states require registration of ownership of automobiles. This information is accessible to the federal government. One clue leads to another. A suspect who returns an income tax statement showing he is engaged in some small business, for instance, but who has bought or sold large quantities of securities or who has engaged in large real estate transactions can often be caught as the government has no difficulty in getting the necessary information from business houses because it has the right to inspect books under a variety of existing statutes.

TIGHT ON BOOTLEGGERS

The "bootlegger" boards his cash gets little joy out of life. Many a violator of the law who has made huge profits has put government agents on the scent without knowing it simply by extravagant purchases in a city or town where he is well known. There are many who are escaping detection but as the government departments coordinate their activities and one hears helps out the other the chances of getting at the incomes of the "bootleggers" will improve daily.

Every man must state his business and sources of income in his income tax return and swear to it. Many "bootleggers" have an ostensible business and make regular returns to the government but they conceal their true source of income. There is no way to detect fraud simply by examining the income tax return itself.

Suppliers develop as a rule out of some circumstance which starts the investigator on his trail and one of the first things he checks up on is the type of business in which the suspect is engaged.

It's a long and tedious process but the government is practicing patience and getting results.

GET TAX ON SOFT DRINKS

Yet of the amount expended to enforce prohibition is offset by the total of fines imposed and even if the government does not recover a good bit of money from "bootleggers" through the income tax investigations, the fact still remains that on the liquor actually bought and sold through illicit channels, no internal revenue taxes are collected and the $500,000,000 loss in taxes has not been wiped out by any taxes on soft drinks.

Prohibition might have had a hard time if the European war had not come and gotten the American people used to paying three and four billion dollars annually in taxes. Under the income tax laws came opportunity for the prohibitionist. An item of $500,000,000 can be swallowed up in the budget by manipulation of other items and a change in tax rates. And when the present system of taxation on specific items gets too burdensome there is always the sales tax idea whereby the experiment in taxation can be continued until some other substitute is offered.

To the outcry that the drink bill of the nation has not decreased, the prohibitionists point to the increases in saving bank deposits and the large volume of transactions in the retail stores of the nation. But to the complaint that a large amount of taxes which used to be collected on wines, whiskies, beer and other alcoholic beverages is not now forthcoming, there is no answer. It is lost. And therein lies one of the factors which ultimately may have a good deal to do with the movement for legalizing the sale of a beverage which is not intoxicating but which contains more than one and one half per cent of alcohol specified by the Volstead law as the upper limit.

Practically all the suggestions for modification which have been introduced in congress in the last two years have had coupled with them some plan

STORMS MAKE BEEHIVE OF JUNCTION DEPOT

Telegraph operators of Appleton Junction had a repetition last week of their experience after the sleet storm a year ago. Train orders, because of the snow blockade, took extra time and taxi drivers and patrons of the road nearly doubled the number of telephone calls about the arrival of trains.

To add to their difficulties a great number of housewives called up the operators to get the correct time. Frequently the operator would be taking a train order at the time and if he did not answer promptly was taken to task.

PULPWOOD SHIPMENTS DELAYED BY BLOCKADE

The recent storm caused a congestion of pulpwood on Ashland division of the Northwestern road. The wood has been arriving in Appleton at the rate of 150 cars daily and is being handled this year in such a manner that little trouble was experienced in its distribution among the mills. The storm delayed the movement of the wood, a considerable quantity of which is temporarily sidetracked.

VALLEY SCOUT BOARD TO MEET ON MONDAY

for raising revenue. The idea that the soldier bonus could be paid by a tax on some light beverage has many more friends in Washington than might appear on the surface. Opinions differ as to what chance any legislation raising the alcoholic content above one and one half per cent would have but there are certain basic facts which underlie the whole controversy and these will be outlined in tomorrow's dispatch.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft-water in quantities, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

CATALOGS BUILD SCHLAFER TRADE

Advertising Club Members Are Told How Mail Order Promotion Works

At the noonday luncheon of Appleton Advertising club in the French room of Conway hotel Thursday, W. D. Schlafer described the hardware and automobile catalogs recently published by the Schlafer Hardware company, and A. A. Wettengel called attention to the benefit that had resulted from them.

Two tons of paper and 50 pounds of ink were used in printing the hardware catalog and one ton of paper and 25 pounds of ink in printing the automobile catalog said Mr. Schlafer. More than 5,000 cuts were used in the former catalog and 3,000 in the latter. It required five months for two persons to compile the printed matter, he said.

Mr. Wettengel said copies of the hardware catalog were mailed to practically all the pulp and paper manufacturers of the United States and Canada and to hardware dealers of Wisconsin, while copies of the automobile catalog were sent to all automobile dealers and garage owners in this part of the country.

The catalogs greatly increased the company's mail order business, declared Mr. Wettengel. The company receives orders from all over the United States and Canada and occasionally from Honolulu and India. These orders are traced directly to the catalogs, he said.

FIND BIG LEAK IN JONES PARK MAIN

The water department leak which resulted in a daily waste of 300,000 gallons is believed to have been accounted for entirely. A leak was located in Jones park ice rink Thursday, and the repair lessened the waste by 200,000 gallons. It appears that the hydrant had been shut off so suddenly that it caused damage to the discharge side of the meter. As a result, thousands of gallons were escaping daily into a manhole.

STRONG POSITION OF GERMANY

New and valuable information as to the financial status of the German government is leaking out as a consequence of the Reichsbank's efforts to obtain foreign gold in exchange for paper marks. The most enlightening discovery, which seems to be reliable, is that the German government is stronger from a monetary standpoint than it was prior to the war.

In 1914 the German national debt, including money in circulation, was more than two trillion marks. At present it is less than one billion gold marks. This does not take into account, however, the reparations obligations of Germany to the allies. The immediate value of this is that another reparations conference is in prospect. Germany is getting ready to submit a definite statement and definite proposal to the allies.

The sooner that France can evacuate the Ruhr, the better it will be for both France and Germany. If any advantage is to ensue to any nation from the Ruhr occupation, it must come speedily. The signs are beginning to look favorable for a settlement.

"SPEAK THE SPEECH TRIPPINGLY"

"Better Speech Week" is observed this week. In some cities teachers in the schools are earnestly advising pupils that the proper use of the language with which we communicate our thoughts and ideas is the significance of education and refinement, or of the lack of them. And in some cities speakers whose opinions are respected are addressing luncheons and women's clubs on better speech.

As a people we are undeniably indifferent as to the quality of our rhetoric and the voice in conversation. Even in writing we almost try to be careless, believing, seemingly, that attempts at style may be regarded as pretentiousness. It is the fashion to avoid literary and oratorical art in every day affairs, for this has become an aspect of false theories which prevail concerning democracy.

It is not necessary to employ big words in correspondence, or composition, or conversation. Nor is it necessary to be dramatic in speech. On the contrary, simple words and clear, simple combinations of words constitute the finest rhetorical style.

We should expel this introspective vanity which influences us to mistake plainness and roughness for evidence of equality and geniality. Democracy is not merely an expression; it is a principle. The manner of democracy comes better in simplicity than sham.

The thoughts that we use, the words that we use, and our style of writing and speaking are unfailing signs of education, intelligence and refinement. We write and speak as we read, listen and think. We should know our language thoroughly, and write it and speak it as well.

COORDINATED TRANSPORTATION

In an address delivered in Detroit, Mr. Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, pictured the motortruck as supplanting many of the shorthaul steam railroads. The truck, he explained, affords frequency of service and store-door collection and delivery of freight, and it dispenses with boxing and crating.

Steadily, we are working out, from experience, practical plans for coordination of the various means of transportation, say from fifty miles to several thousand. The truck is a better facility for local and shorthaul business. We are now realizing the important part that the waterway is sure to take in transportation.

Progress may be delayed, but it cannot be stopped. Rail, motor and water facilities will be coordinated. Economy and utility will bring about coordination.

THE RED BEAR

Five hundred thousand Russians will die from hunger and diseases caused by under-nourishment this year before the 1923 crops are harvested. We get this in a letter from William Garner, former American newspaperman, now connected with the American relief organization in Russia. Five hundred thousand may seem like a big figure, and it is. But in the autumn of 1921 nearly 24 millions were starving in the Russian famine districts, out of their total population of 42 millions. In the year that followed, writes Garner, not more than 1,500,000 Russians died from famine. This is the estimate of some of the leading American officials who have been feeding the hungry over there. American relief broke the backbone of the famine. The lives we saved probably run into the millions.

One of the greatest handicaps to Russian recovery says Garner, is that so many horses, cows, sheep and goats were killed for food. American relief, however, put an end to that. He writes: "Russia will not be able to feed its children properly until the cows and goats are brought up to the normal number. And it will not be fully able to take advantage of its available agricultural land until its draft horses are again equal to the pre-war number or replaced by motor cars and tractors."

Mr. Garner's report conveys the idea that reports from Russia have been exaggerated. He quotes American officials as estimating that the number of Russians actually starving this winter does not exceed 5,000,000. Our charity representatives have the situation in hand perhaps as well as could be expected; both in the matter of food and medical supplies. For one thing, the cholera and typhus epidemics are getting under control.

Mr. Garner sums up the general Russian situation by saying that there has been a pronounced change for the better. The people are as badly clothed as ever, but they seem animated by a more energetic spirit. "They have more and more the air of having something to do, whereas a year ago they had the appearance of having nothing to do, and nothing to look forward to. The change for the better may be noticed in the shop windows, in the fact that the streets are kept cleaner. Railroad service is appreciably better. The street car, the electric lighting and gas systems—in Moscow, at least—are better than a year ago."

The Red Bear, gaunt and weak, but with renewed interest in life and a desire to do, is slowly emerging from his den. Recovery will be slow. But it seems to have started.

THE KANSAS CONCEPT OF FELONY

The cigarette is under proscription in Kansas, whose citizens brag of it as the most enlightened state in America. Nevertheless, people sell, buy and smoke cigarettes in Kansas. In fact, the general assembly was asked, the other day, to approve a bill of $100 for cigarettes bought in Seamon by a militia captain during the war.

Now, a bill has been introduced in the legislature to make the sale, gift, possession or use of a cigarette a felony, punishable in the second offense by three years in the penitentiary. Kansas proposes to prove its progressiveness, modernity and appreciation of individual rights and liberties by making cigarette-smoking almost a capital crime.

We must emphasize to ourselves, each of us, the point stressed by Secretary of Commerce Hoover in his book. This is that representative government rests on individualism. There is no such thing as liberty except as an individual right. The nation that keeps its freedom is the nation whose individuals retain their freedom. Laws, like mandates, unmake government. Democracy survives by the consent of the governed.

GET YOUR IODIN

Dr. Emory R. Hayhurst, professor of hygiene, Ohio State university, has called attention to the fact that, practically all salt used in the United States for dietary consumption is obtained from inland sources by the evaporation of brines which for the most part are inherently free of iodine. Modern processes of preparing and purifying salt for table use free it of all traces of iodine. And it seems that a certain amount of iodine, in one form or another, is essential for health. If we do not obtain it in or with our salt we must acquire it from some other source. The chief source of iodine in commerce is Chile salt peter. Sea water, sea weed or plants and all sea fish or sea food contain iodine. The soil and water of districts far inland are poor in iodine because the iodine of nature occurs in the form of salts (iodides) which are usually very soluble, hence rapidly dissolved out of the soil and carried down to the sea in the water. How much iodine an adult needs daily or yearly is a question but students of the subject estimate that an ounce a year is required by the average adult.

The evils which result from lack of sufficient iodine are too many to refer to in a limited space. Professor Hayhurst suggests that the use of sea water in place of common salt as a condiment would solve the iodine deficiency problem. This would be practicable for persons living near the sea. He further suggests that certain elements or constituents of sea water are needed in the economy of man and animals. For instance, may not the bromine present in sea water or natural sea salt play a part in preventing conditions of nervous excitement?

Dr. Adoniram J. Quimby of New York finds that hardening of the arteries and the associated troubles of cardiovascular disease are less frequent among seafaring men, notwithstanding their hard life; he thinks this may be due to their indulgence in sea food. He suggests that the invigorating effect of sea air may be due to the iodine in it. He regards iodine as a valuable preventive of the premature aging which overtakes those who work for years with X-ray. Dr. Quimby advocates the daily consumption of minute particles of a tincture of iodine as a preventive of arteriosclerosis and high blood pressure. He considers such use of iodine distinctly tonic and declares it increases exuberance of spirit and ambition. He thinks that some athletes go stale because their ration lacks sufficient iodine; he attributes to this the relative lack of exceedingly minute doses of iodine a corrective influence on the circulation, especially when the individual has cold hands and cold feet and a cold skin, be it dry or moist. A suitable iodine ration, according to Dr. Quimby, will sometimes put the worn or exhausted business man back in condition, even when a vacation is of little value.

Iodine, in the right quantity as a daily ration, unquestionably stimulates the general metabolism of life process.

Dr. Quimby prefers a modification of the standard tincture of iodine, made as follows:
Iodine crystals 30 (thirty) grains
Ammonium iodide 20 (twenty) grains
Alcohol 1/2 (one-half) ounce
Glycerin, Enough to make one ounce
To be placed in an amber glass stoppered bottle with a pipette dropper. The ration is from one to four drops in a glassful of water, once daily. An ounce is sufficient for two or three months.

THE CITY MANAGER

HOW CITY MANAGER WORKS

By Frederic J. Haskin

Petersburg, Va. — Petersburg is selected as an example of the city manager type of city not because the plan has worked better here than elsewhere, nor because it has been long in effect here, but simply because it is more convenient to choose a particular city as a subject, and more convenient to choose Petersburg because the city manager here, Louis Brownlow, is at present the president of the City Manager's Association.

Mr. Brownlow is a native of the Ozark Hills in Missouri who began his active life as a newspaper man in the home of his ancestors, Nashville, Tennessee, continued his training at Louisville and became a Washington correspondent. He was very much interested in municipal government and while traveling in many countries never failed to investigate and write about local government.

It was as the result of some articles on municipal administration in England and Scotland that President Wilson selected him a Commissioner of the District of Columbia, in which position he served for six years, being at the head of the city government of Washington during the World war. In September, 1920, he resigned to take up the work of city manager of Petersburg. In the forenoon of one day he was the President of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia at a salary of $5,000, and that afternoon he was City Manager of Petersburg at a salary of $10,000, showing the length of title and substance of remuneration are not necessarily akin.

The people of Petersburg, barring the days of reconstruction, had had very little experience with graft or corruption in their city government; but the machinery of a board of aldermen and a common council and a mayor was cumbersome and unwieldy, and too often city employees were hired because of their political pull rather than because of their qualifications to do the work they were hired for. During the war, as prices and costs advanced, the council did not keep pace, and the revenues did not meet the expenses. Deficits piled up.

PEOPLE DECIDE UPON CHANGE
In 1916 the Virginia Legislature, seeing the success of the new experiment in Staunton, passed an act enabling any city to change its form of government by a vote of the people. Petersburg held an election and by an overwhelming majority decided to make a change. A committee of One Hundred was formed to select nominees for the council, which is composed of five men elected from the city at large, the old ward lines having been abolished. Five nominees, a lawyer, a banker, two merchants and a machinist were selected and elected without opposition. Later the machinist died and the other members of the council chose an iron moulder as his successor. During the two and a quarter years of their service there never has been a dissenting vote in the council, every decision being unanimous.

Politics in the old sense of the term has disappeared from the city government. The council controls the policy of the government, passes the budget, levies the taxes, passes ordinances and directs the government, but the council leaves the City Manager an absolutely free hand in carrying out those policies.

Mr. Brownlow says that no member of the council since he took office has directly or indirectly endorsed any person for appointment, or suggested the employment of any person, or criticized any appointment he has made. Mr. Brownlow knows and the council knows, that at any time he doesn't follow the council's policies he will be dismissed, but so long as he carries out the ideas he will be free. The city employees know that they must make good to the city manager, and that there is no political influence to which they can appeal if anything goes wrong. As long as they deliver the goods on the job they know they are safe, when they don't deliver they know they are off the pay-roll and nothing can get them back.

"I found it necessary to make very few changes in the personnel of the city government," said Mr. Brownlow. "When I took charge I simply told the employees that I did not know what had been done in the past and would not listen to old tales related, but that those who made good with me would be kept and those who did not would be dropped. Very few have been dropped. Only twice have I found it necessary to go outside of the city to find a man for a particular job, and I did not do that until I was satisfied that I could find no qualified man here in Petersburg. I believe I have as loyal a staff of workers as can be found in any business organization, and every man of them knows that his work is the sole measure of his value to me and to the city."

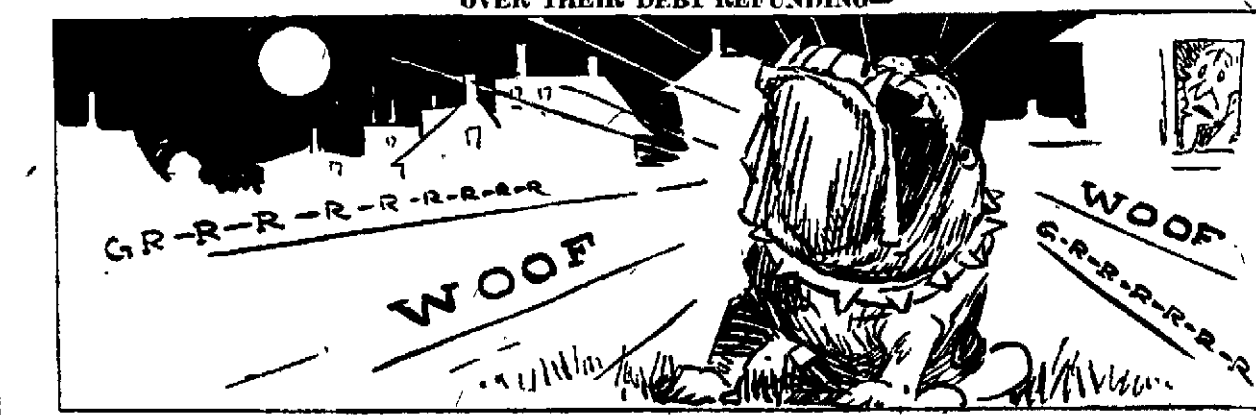

Thus the thing that seemed impossible has been very simply done—personal and political and factional politics have been entirely eliminated from the city government. The man on the street will tell you that nobody has any pull and the most prominent man in town hasn't a chance that the humblest citizen hasn't, so far as the administration of the law and the city is concerned.

NO ORGANIZED OPPOSITION
That does not mean, of course, that everybody likes what is being done or approves of every policy adopted by the city government. Some citizens approve one thing and disapprove another, but at the end of two and a quarter years no organized opposition to the city government existed, no organization in the city has taken an adverse vote on any policy adopted, nearly every organization has formally approved the main program adopted, and there has been no meeting of dissenters except one group who protested against a new assessment for taxation which was completed before the new government took office.

The new assessments, which represented a considerable increase—land assessments are made in Virginia at five-year intervals—while completed before the new government came in, enabled the new administration slightly to decrease the tax rate, although the actual tax collections were increased. That means that in dollars and cents the taxes have been increased, but the city now lives each year within its income, whereas before it had each year an accumulating deficit. That there has been so little opposition in the face of increased taxation is all the more remarkable. In some cities, where the old government had been more business-like, the introduction of the economies of the new government has permitted a slight reduction in taxation, but generally speaking the increasing efficiency of the city government has brought about a greater popular demand for improvements and increased service, so that the savings of the new system more often have been demonstrated in service than in decreased taxation. Then, too, the movement has had its growth during the era of rising costs, which have affected the results.

The actual expenditures have not increased in Petersburg except for schools, where the teachers salaries have been increased, and for debt charges on account of bond issues for permanent improvements and the funding of the inherited deficit. The population is 32,000, and the budget, including the schools, the bond interest, the sinking fund, and other charges that in other States would be county charges—cities in Virginia are independent of counties—amounts to $550,000. The neighboring city of Lynchburg, with a thousand fewer people and a most efficient city manager government, has a budget of $1,300,000. Both budgets are balanced by the revenues and both cities live within their incomes, but Lynchburg has even a little lower tax rate than Petersburg. Lynchburg is much wealthier and out of its current revenues makes many permanent improvements that Petersburg must finance through the sale of bonds. Virginia cities may not do as cities in all other States, but South Carolina, assess any part of the cost of improvements against abutting property, and these expenses are reflected in the tax rate. These illustrations show how difficult it is to compare financial statistics of city with city, even in the same State. In different States under differing tax laws the task is almost impossible. Instead of pursuing, then, the intricate subject of financial statistics, we will content ourselves with something of what has been done in Petersburg by the new government.

Q. How much would it be possible to add to the acreage of the farms in the United States?

A. The Department of Agriculture says it is possible to increase the area of improved land about 300,000 acres, or 50 per cent. This would be accomplished by irrigation, drainage, clearing and dry farming. Prices to the farmers for products are not high enough to make such an outlay of time and money profitable.

Q. When was the Muscle Shoals project begun? A. D. R.

A. The improvement of the Tennessee River at Muscle Shoals was begun May 23, 1828, when Congress gave the State of Alabama land enough to bring $200,000. A canal was begun in 1831 and completed in 1836, but was not adequate nor serviceable. In 1871, the Federal Government took the project in hand, surveyed and built a canal which was finished in 1880 which cost more than $3,000,000. This is the canal which was closed to navigation when the construction of Wilson Dam was started in 1918.

Q. How is candied lemon peel fixed? D. R. S.

A. Scrub lemons, cut into quarters, remove and cut peel into one-eighth inch strips and place in saucpan. For each pound of peel add 3 pints of cold water, boil 10 minutes. Pour water off and repeat five times, or until all the bitter flavor has been removed from the peel. Drain off half pound of sugar in 2 ounces of water, and cook to a thick syrup. Dry peel in the folds of a towel, place in a syrup and cook until syrup is all absorbed by the peel. While hot, roll in dry sugar. Orange peel may be done in the same fashion, except that the water need be changed only twice.

Grenfell Is Paid Honors By World

Man Who Conquered In The Interest Of Mercy Speaks Tomorrow Night

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, who will speak on the subject "Midst Ice and Snow in Labrador" at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Saturday evening as the only man who has an honorary doctor of medicine degree from Oxford university. Many colleges in this country and in Europe have bestowed honors upon this man who has done so great a medical service to the people who live in Labrador.

When Dr. Grenfell began his work on the bleak and barren coasts of that little country, there were no doctors and no facilities for giving medical attention to those who became ill or were hurt. The physical suffering was beyond imagination and to overcome the difficulties meant an enormous amount of work for Dr. Grenfell and his associates and an untold amount of privation.

Conditions are much better in Labrador now after 40 years of effort, but it is about the struggles to accomplish this that Dr. Grenfell will talk on Saturday evening. His lecture is the eighth number of the Community Lecture and Artist series.

World Famous St. Olaf College Singers Invited Here By Lutherans

The world renowned St. Olaf Lutheran choir will give a concert in Appleton on Easter Monday evening, April 2, at Lawrence Memorial chapel under auspices of the Lutheran churches of this city. The choir is one of the best known and most highly endowed musical organizations in the United States and many people are looking forward with keen anticipation to the concert.

Students from St. Olaf college make up the personnel of the organization, which includes 62 voices. There are 40 women and 22 men. F. Melius Christiansen is the musical director. One of the outstanding characteristics of the St. Olaf program is that all numbers are sung without accompaniment and entirely from memory.

The choir has been making an annual tour of the country since 1912. In 1913, the group went to Europe where it was greeted with great enthusiasm in all the cities where concerts were arranged. On several occasions, it was presented to royalty. When not on tour, the choir sings at the Sunday morning church services at the college.

William H. Zuehlke is chairman of the arrangements in Appleton. Tickets will be on sale at the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, Voigt's drug store, Belling drug store, Downer West End Pharmacy and the office of the Aid Association for Lutherans.

WOMEN SOLONS TO DEMAND CHILD LAW

Minnesota Quartet Would Protect Child Born Out Of Wedlock

St. Paul, Minn.—Minnesota's four women lawmakers have joined forces in the State Legislature in support of a statute to erase the scarlet-letter brand from the brow of the innocent little ones born out of wedlock in their state.

The measure, prepared at the Salvation Army's suggestion, was introduced in the House of Representatives with the joint indorsement of Mrs. Mabeth Hurd Page, Miss Myrtle Cline, Mrs. Hannah Kemper and Mrs. Sue M. Dickey Hough. It is declared by legal authorities the most sweeping of its kind ever laid before the legislature of any state.

WHAT AUTHORITIES SAY
The women demand for children born out of wedlock precisely the same rights at law as the offspring of regularly contracted marriages—not only support, as already required, but a father's name, and a share in whatever estate which, dying, he may leave to his heirs.

On the one hand, the proposal has won numerous strong supporters, to a great extent through the representations of the Salvation Army relative to the plight of nameless children and expectant mothers, many of the latter, girls from 15 to 18 years old, who have drifted in from rural communities to St. Paul and Minneapolis rescue homes.

On the other hand, the point is made that the Legislature must be careful to avoid providing unscrupulous persons with a weapon for extorting blackmail—women being especially insistent upon safeguards against injustice to lawful wives and children of men wrongfully accused.

Typical of comment on the measure: "I am opposed," said the Rev. E. M. Cross, of St. John's Episcopal Church, "to any circumvention between so-called illegitimate and legitimate children. Care must be taken, however, to prevent blackmail by the unscrupulous."

"From the Christian viewpoint," said the Rev. Howard Y. Williams of the People's Church, "I believe the proposed law is a great advance."

"It is only Christian that children should not be made to suffer for something they are in no way responsible for," declared the Rev. John Dunphy of St. Mary's Catholic Church.

FEARFUL OF BLACKMAIL
"I favor the proposed amendments," said the Rev. J. W. Holland, pastor of the First Methodist Church, "from the very fact that it is supported by women legislators. I believe it will curb illegitimacy and remove some of the stigma many innocent children have had to suffer."

"I believe," said Mrs. M. K. Knauff, president of the Woman's Welfare League, "the bill would give an unscrupulous woman a chance to rob the rightful heirs of a man after his death."

"If children born out of wedlock share equally with the lawful offspring," said Mrs. John Wharry, chairman, fourth district, State Federation of Women's Clubs, "I believe men will realize more keenly the responsibility of fatherhood."

Child in Hospital
Harold Woehler, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Woehler, town of Ellington, was moved from his home to St. Elizabeth hospital Thursday, where he submitted to an operation for appendicitis. The child is seriously ill.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoo contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoons of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at all drug stores. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

$75,000 BONUS MONEY PAID FOR SUGAR BEETS

Farmers Draw Extra $1.59 a Ton for Beets Delivered to Menominee River Sugar Company

The farmer of this section have just received another proof of the advantage of growing sugar beets. This time the proof is in the form of substantial bonus checks for the beets grown and delivered by them last season.

After they delivered their crop last fall the beets were paid the guaranteed price of $6 per ton but their contracts provided that, should the New York quoted price of beet sugar average more than $5.50 per hundred pounds for the period from October 15 to January 31, they would share with the company in the benefit of the higher price.

CHECKS NOW IN MAIL
The average price of sugar for that period was such that the farmers drew an extra $1.59 per ton on the beets they delivered last fall and the Menominee River Sugar company has just mailed out additional checks to their beet growers totaling $75,000 in payment of this bonus.

It is good news to hear of the farmer getting these additional benefits for they have not enjoyed too much prosperity for the past two years.

SUGAR BEET BEST CROP
With the low price of potatoes and other farm crops, the return that sugar beets brought puts that crop in the king row and puts those who grow beets in a happier frame of mind.

The acreage of sugar beets in this district for the coming year will no doubt be very largely increased, as the double last year's acreage has already been contracted for 1923 and with the prospects of high priced sugar ahead, the returns on this crop will doubtless prove very satisfactory at fall.

The farmers who grow a variety of crops invariably make more money than those who plant too much of one farm to some one crop. adv.

Officers of the Mulford team, however, replied that the Mulford team will be kept out of the tournament if such is the desire of other managers. The plan in starting the affair was merely an attempt to revive interest in basketball in this city, the Mulford manager stated.

THE "TROUBLE SHOOTER"

Shows How to Locate and Correct any Automobile Engine Trouble

By E. H. SLOTT

This is the first of a series of specially prepared and illustrated articles showing the ordinary automobile driver how to locate any engine trouble

When the Engine Will Not Start

Starting Motor Troubles

When you go to the garage to take out the car, and on putting your foot on the Starting Motor Switch, nothing happens, because the Starting Motor does not operate, proceed as follows—
Turn on the lights and observe their appearance. If the lights are DULL or DEAD, see A. If, however, the lights are BRIGHT, then watch them closely while you step on the Starter Switch for a second or so then, if the lights go VERY DIM when you step on the Starter Switch, see B. If the lights DIM ONLY SLIGHTLY, and Starter HUMS OVER, yet it does not turn the engine, see C. If the lights DO NOT CHANGE and Starter DOES NOT OPERATE AT ALL, or only a half-turn or so, see D.

Examine the Battery connections to see that they are TIGHT and not CORRODED badly, and be sure to see that the GROUNDED terminal (see illustration) on the Battery is TIGHT.

If the Battery terminals are corroded badly, take them off and clean thoroughly with a little ammonia, then smear with vasoline and tighten down firmly. If the connections are all right, have the Battery recharged at the first opportunity. If the lights show any life at all, try and start the engine with the hand crank, as there will probably be enough life left in the Battery to operate the Ignition.

If the Battery has been running down very rapidly, examine all wires carefully, to see if the insulated covering or insulation has rubbed through at any point, so allowing the bare wire to touch a metal part. If the wiring has rubbed through, buy a small roll of Insulating Tape at any accessory or electric goods store, and carefully tape up the part of the wire that has rubbed through. If you cannot find anything wrong with the wiring, then have a good Ignition man test it out, and also test the Generator to see that it is charging the Battery, and the Cut Out on the Generator to see that it operates properly. Sometimes it sticks with the points closed, and runs down the Battery.

See that the engine is out of gear. If it is, then examine the Starting Motor Pinion to see that it is not stuck in the edge of the flywheel.

First, turn off the Ignition Switch (if you have not already done so) then put the engine into high gear and rock car backwards and forwards, when the pinion will generally release itself. If it does NOT, then the bolts holding the Starting Motor to the frame will have to be loosened, and pinion released. If you have to do this, have a good mechanic or the Service Station line up the shaft for you before you use the Starter again. Use the hand crank until you can get this done.

If Starting Motor has a Bendix drive, as illustrated, see (1). If it has a Clutch Drive, see (2).

BENDIX DRIVE

1. Examine the Coil Spring on the Starting Motor shaft to see that it is not broken or disconnected. If the spring looks all right, then clean the threaded sleeve that the Pinion runs on, with some gasoline, then try Starter to see if it will engage. DO NOT at any time LUBRICATE this outer thread, it must be DRY. If Starter will still not operate, then remove the bolt on the end of the shaft, when the threaded sleeve with the spring and pinion attached can be pulled off. Clean inside the sleeve thoroughly with some gasoline or kerosene, then lubricate INSIDE the sleeve with a little GRAPHITE grease and replace on the shaft.

CLUTCH DRIVE

2. On the outside of the case, you will find a place to oil the clutch with a thin, high grade oil. Squirt a little oil through this hole, then try Starter again. If it STILL will not operate, engine properly, the clutch rollers have worn and must be replaced by a competent mechanic.

1. Examine the connections at the Starting Motor, Starting Switch, and Battery to see that they are all clean and tight. If they seem all right then—
2. Remove the cover from end of Starting Motor and examine the brushes to see that they are bearing on the commutator with a moderate amount of pressure and are not binding. BE SURE YOU DO NOT CHANGE THE POSITION OF THE BRUSHES while doing this. If they appear to be all right then—
3. Blow out any dust that may have accumulated, then examine the Commutator surface. If it appears dirty or blackened, then clean the surface with a piece of rag moistened with Gasoline and finish with a piece of very fine No. 00 SAND PAPER, not emery cloth. Now replace cover and try Starter. If it STILL will not operate, then start the engine with the hand crank and have the Starting Motor examined by an expert electrical mechanic, as the fault is an internal one requiring his skill to remedy.

Spring Opening Saturday. Featuring Young Ladies' Spring Hats, moderately priced.—Mrs. Anna T. Buerth, Kaukauna.

HURRIED LIVING IS BRINGING ILLS

Special to Post-Crescent
Chicago—"Civilization today faces a peril, far more insidious than any wastage of the body by disease—we are becoming a world of crazy nerves."

Professor Frederick Starr, head of the University of Chicago and the greatest living anthropologist, made this statement here today.

This disease, too new to have a name, is far more insidious than any of the ancient plagues that once destroyed whole nations.

And we are all suffering from it, according to Professor Starr.

ILLS BLASTED EMPIRES
Professor Starr, commenting upon a subject raised at the recent Cambridge (Mass.) session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science—the theory that the old Greeks, Aztecs and others lost their empires not because of human invasion or conquest but because of disease, introduced in some cases by the victims they had conquered, said:

"Plagues and pestilences of the old type no longer menace civilization. Science has made it impossible for them to destroy whole nations."

"But we face an even greater peril today."

Then the great anthropologist gave me this description of the new malady he believes has afflicted the whole race:

"Everyone is trying to do some thing different. We are in a turmoil, jumping, running, careening, not knowing where to go."

"We do everything fast. We telephone needlessly, thus putting up a bar to effective friendships and frustrating the ordinary civilities of human relationships."

"We are all much too uselessly busy."

"People run about in endless circles. There is lack of stability."

ITS SYMPTOMS
"Our minds have reached a stage, bordering on almost complete neurosis."

"We are in the midst of a horrible unrest, which, in the guise of religious zeal, commercial greed or lust for power and conquest, is tearing whole peoples away from the customs and traditions of their countries."

"Minds are running riot. New schemes of government are being tested."

ITS EFFECTS
"We are nearing a racial nervous breakdown."

"Effects of this neurotic psychological disturbance are seen in the symptoms of present-day disease. Aliments which 50 years ago were simple of diagnosis now bear no symptoms of their real character."

"The diabetic once wasted away. Today he dies in a state of corpulence."

"And so it goes down the calendar of all ailments. The age is changing everything. This is the result of disturbed minds."

"At the rate we're going, it is only a matter of time before our present mode of civilization causes the race to degenerate in such a manner that we shall be without hair, fingernails or teeth. These are going now."

"And if these effects of nervous breakdown are visible in the physical makeup of people, how must their minds be affected?"

No use exaggerating on this coffee question, because the facts themselves are sufficiently impressive. You can go through life and be happy, even if you never have good coffee to drink. UNFAVORABLE LAWS PUT STOP TO PLANS OF 3 LOCAL FIRMS

Appleton Loses Because Of Alleged Radical Tendencies Of Legislature

Three Appleton concerns were among the Wisconsin manufacturers who will not expand their properties because of the radical tendencies of the legislature as listed by George F. Kull, secretary of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association, and former Appleton man, for the legislative tax committee this week. The three local firms whose plans for expansion will be held in abeyance until the present situation is clarified are the Valley Iron Works, Appleton Wood Products Co. and Appleton Toy and Furniture Co. It was impossible to ascertain the total amount of improvements contemplated.

According to Seymour Gmeiner of the Appleton Wood Products Co., his firm had planned to build an addition to the Douglas side of the present plant, extending to Melvin street. These plans are held in abeyance, however, until there is assurance that the legislature will not add to the burdens of the manufacturer.

E. A. Peterson of the Valley Iron Works declined to comment on his company's plans but Julius Kahn of Appleton Toy and Furniture Co. disclosed that his firm had very extensive plans for enlargement which will not be carried out under the present circumstances. His company planned to erect a warehouse and make a material enlargement of its factory, either by adding another story or building an addition. The total cost of the improvements would be in the neighborhood of $30,000 but none of the work will be done until Mr. Kahn has assurance that manufacturers will not be discriminated against by the legislature. He said it would be business suicide to make additions to his plant under present conditions.

Sixty-five Wisconsin firms, including many of the largest in the state, have announced they will not enlarge their plants nor take any steps toward expansion as long as the legislature persists in its present attitude toward manufacturers.

GERMANS SCRAMBLE FOR AMERICAN DOLLAR

By Associated Press

Berlin—American dollars hold magic charm for Germans. Since the quotation of the dollar has risen well above 20,000 marks, that coin is regarded as charmed. Newspapers display quotations of the dollar in black type on their front pages. It stands alone. Quotations on English, Swiss and Scandinavian money are relegated to the market pages.

An American woman who lives in Berlin was recently approached by a seamy-looking German boy, the playmate of her son, who hesitatingly asked: "Won't you please show me a real dollar?"

She handed him a dollar bill to examine, and the boy fingered it for some time in complete silence before protesting: "But its just paper; haven't you a real one?"

The woman explained she had no silver dollar, but assured him the American paper was just as good as the silver, and even more valuable if one wanted to sell it at the bank.

The little fellow wasn't persuaded. He thanked the American woman very politely and walked away in deep study over the intricacies of currency.

In shops foreigners are frequently asked for dollars. Shopkeepers and clerks are anxious to have at least one as a souvenir. No American who desires to send a gift to a German friend can do better than mail crisp, new American bills. The high rate of exchange on the dollar is almost the sole topic of conversation in mixed gatherings, and fortunate is the man who can produce an American bill before astonished friends.

ON THE SCREEN

SIMPLE CHARM OF SEACOAST DRAMATIZED

"Rose o' the Sea" Opens with Storm and Shipwreck

The simple charm of the seacoast and the luxurious haunts of Broadway blend in the harmonious story of "Rose o' the Sea" which will be the first National attraction starring Anita Stewart to open a 2 day run at the Elite Theater commencing today. Adapted from Countess Barynska's novel of the same name, "Rose o' the Sea" offers an opportunity for a colorful production and a sharp contrast of emotional appeal and various walks of life which according to advance reports, Director Fred Niblo has taken full advantage of.

The theme of a simple country girl cast into the arms of an unknown guardian by reason of a shipwreck and later forced to fight her own way as a saleslady in a Fifth Avenue floral shop, is one for which admirers of Anita Stewart declare that this pulchritudinous star is especially well adapted. With a forte for delineating unsophisticated girls and the simpler emotional appeals she has developed a strong following by her conscientious acting in the everyday elements of life.

VIOLA DANA IN CRINOLINES IN HER NEW ROLE

The latest Metro photoplay to star the charming Viola Dana is "Crinoline and Romance," and it is to be shown to the large family of Miss Dana's enthusiasts on Sunday and Monday at the Elite Theater. Many novelties, both in characterization and in story, are promised for this film, and photoplay fans should be entertained hugely, if accounts of the picture can be depended upon.

Miss Dana's versatility takes an entirely new turn in "Crinolines and Romance." In the photoplay she is seen as a naive Southern miss, completely sequestered from the rest of the world on her grandfather's estates in North Carolina. The star is everything that her role calls for—demure, vivacious, spirited, and fascinating. Her acting in this picture is said to provide a real surprise for theatergoers.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken-out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and the after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Y. M. C. A. Starts New Year With Surplus Of $796.47 In Treasury

Change In Bookkeeping System Starts New Financial Year On Jan. 1—Budget For 12-Month Period Totals $38,200

Careful operation of the Y. M. C. A. during the eight months "year" which started May 1, 1922, and ended Dec. 31, 1922, was attested by the balance of $796.47 which remained in the treasury at the close of the period. The report of the period's receipts and expenditures was submitted to the Y. M. C. A. board of directors at its January meeting by George F. Werner, general secretary. A budget for the 12 months ending Dec. 31, 1923, with an estimate of expenditures for the same period, was presented by the association's budget committee.

A change in bookkeeping went into effect the first of this year. Whereby the Y. M. C. A. finances are computed by the calendar year instead of for a 12-month period ending on April 30. This was done to simplify the work of bookkeeping and of making collections.

The receipts for the eight months period which ended Dec. 31, were $81,947.41 and expenditures for the same period were $81,150.94, leaving a surplus of $796.47.

$38,200 BUDGET FOR 1923
The budget committee estimated the total receipts for the year which started Jan. 1 and ends next Dec. 31, at $38,200 and the expenditures were estimated at the same amount. It is interesting to note that of the total receipts, $20,200 is to come from memberships, including sustaining memberships, and the remainder is to come from operation of the building and its facilities. Sustaining memberships are estimated at $8,500, less than 25 per cent of the total receipts. These sustaining memberships include the use of Y. M. C. A. facilities. The figures indicate that the Y. M. C. A. is about 80 per cent self-sustaining and that not more than 20 per cent of the total cost of operation must be met by contributions.

Approximately one-half of the total receipts of the Y. M. C. A. for the eight months period was represented by memberships. Memberships receipts totaled $17,452.01, divided as follows:

Only 9 Men in 100 Need Ever Be Bald—Yet 4 Men in 7 Are Bald, or Partially Bald, at 40

This is to offer you, under money-back guarantee, the new Van Ess treatment for the scalp. Under actual recorded tests it grew hair on 11 heads in 100.

Our proposition is simple. Your own druggist signs the guarantee. You take no chance of loss. Either we grow hair or the treatment costs you nothing.

Hair Roots Seldom Die

Records show 4 men in 7 either bald or partially bald at 40.

Yet science proves only 9 men in 100 need ever be bald.

Kills the Infected Sebum

Modern research traces 91% of all hair troubles to a simple infection—to infected Sebum.

Sebum is an oil. It forms at the hair follicles. Its healthy function is to supply the hair with oil. But frequently it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp. It plugs the follicles—forms a breeding place for bacteria. Then germs by the millions start to feed on the hair. Baldness soon follows.

You must combat that infection—must remove infected Sebum. If you do, hair will grow. Remember, the hair roots are not dead.

This new method combats the Sebum—kills the infection. We guarantee it. It stops falling hair in three weeks. It grows new hair with continued treatment. If not—your money back.

Obtain it now—today—at any drug store. It is guaranteed. Hence it is folly not to try it.

RENUMBERING TO BE TAKEN UP BY COUNCIL AGAIN

Street Committee Expects To Decide On Plan To Meet Problem

Consideration of the various plans offered for the renumbering and renumbering of Appleton streets is again to be resumed by the common council's committee on streets and bridges, according to Alderman Charles Fose, chairman of the committee.

The matter was given considerable study by the committee last winter but had to be pigeon-holed until this winter on account of the many other duties of the committee during the height of the 1922 street improvements. The work in connection with the council's bridge program then delayed the street renumbering program further. Mr. Fose said.

"I have had this matter on my mind all winter," he said, "and I hope to call a meeting in the very near future to complete our study of the proposition. I should like very much to have the matter settled before the old council retires."

THREE PLANS OFFERED
Three principal plans have been suggested to the city. The plan of O. P. Weissgerber, city engineer, calls for renumbering all houses 100 to the block beginning from Oneida-st and College-ave, and proposes one name for streets and street continuations of many names. As one example, Bateman-st is a continuation of Park-ave, but one name would be used for the two.

The plan suggested by Chief George T. McGillan and others proposes elimination of all street names and substitute numbers, thus providing for First-st, First-ave, with designations North, South, etc.

A third plan, offered by George T. Richard, besides agreeing with the Weissgerber house number sys-

"BETTER AMERICAN HOMES"

VAL of PARADISE

"The trainer said he went mad as a lunatic when they tried to take him. Wild, screaming, furious, he charged them full, broke his rope and literally drove them into the sanctuary of the pass—but they took his gentler double, the starry-eyed Meteor. Out of the chasm and defiles The Comet came next day at my ceaseless calling, came rampant and blowing, and we've been together ever since."

Valentia ceased, rolled his wide hat aimlessly between his fingers and set it back upon his head. He pulled it well down above his eyes and turned to the girl with his old gentle smile.

"Come Miss Hannon," he said, "let me take you down. The tale is told—the story finished. Now you know Valentia, sometimes of the border, sometimes of the fashion of my living. That can be told in a breath. I hate oppression. In Mexico I have thrived appallingly. I have had to travel ceaselessly. I have put my hands against every man who wronged a helpless one, and I have enjoyed the police I've made them pay wherever and whenever I could. I have stolen right and left—and given it right and left. I have kept nothing for myself except the bread I ate. And always I have searched—searched for The Meteor and the man who rides him—for I mean to have them both."

He reached for her hand with a firm grip and drew her with him out from the shelter of the corner-house to where the horses stood at the steep trail's head. As they paused to mount, Val again put her hand on his shoulder and faced him gravely.

"Some day," she said softly, "some day—you'll come back to me."

The muscles in Valentia's arms twitched but he held them sterner at his sides. The knuckles on his clenched hands shone pearly white with the effort.

"No," he said thickly, "I am—not the man."

But Miss Hannon, her dark eyes dim with honest tears, leaned forward and kissed him square upon his tight-lipped lips.

"Some day," she said with strange conviction, "you will come back to the church door—and with me."

Then they mounted in silence, and in silence went down the trail to the levels below.

CHAPTER XVI
The Vixen's Heart

"When love is a girl, turns to hate. All love is a girl, turns to hate. Valentia's soul was chaos. As he followed Val Hannon down the face of Mesa Grande a flood of bitter waters rose and drowned his inner self. Tregrets, remorse, sorrow, they all took hold on him and wrung him a rag between them."

And his head was whirling like a drunkard's with the equine memory of that honest kiss. No matter what happened he would always have that, a precious possession.

And then they reached the bottom of the trail, set deep between huge shafts of rotting stone, and came face to face with Lolo Sanchez on a pinto pony. Dusky, as sunset, full-blown as a flower, very beautiful in a sensuous fashion she sat and looked at them—or at the man rather.

Val she did not seem to see. The bud of her scarlet mouth broke over her small white teeth in a smile that had ravished more hearts than one and she held out one slim hand.

"Master," she said in Spanish, "Lolita roused from his tense reverie, pulled himself together and shook the hand politely."

"How do you do, Lolo," he said. "Como esta V.?" she returned, still in the Spanish, as if by its use she narrowed the interest to themselves.

Valentia turned to Val. "Miss Hannon," he said, "do you know the Señorita Sanchez?"

"No," said Val and smiled. But Lolo did not smile. Instead she took the girl's hand and the other girl was slow, appraising, insistent. The Rose of Santa Leandra had never forgiven the loosening of this man's arm, the slipping of herself out of his consciousness when he glanced up that night at Humpwell's to face John Hannon's daughter. Therefore she hated the woman.

"What matters?" she said. "I am only Lolo of Paradise, too lowly for the Pride of Paradise to see."

With consummate art she dropped her wonderful eyes, and as she said, the meek, the fur beneath. Only Lolo of Leandra—poor in this world's goods, a little sister of the more fortunate. And Valentia was the friend of such.

Val, understanding perfectly, stiffened in her saddle and a slow flush grew in her cheeks.

The girl looked up and all her flower face melted in beauty of tenderness as she smiled at him.

"None but you, my master," she said softly, "is so kind to me. Women hate me—all of them. I have still the gold you gave me—and the kiss as well."

Valentia's nostrils drew in a sharp white line.

"Lolo," he said, "speak English."

"No need," said Val quickly, "I understand."

He did not look at her, though a cold hand gripped at his vitals.

"Well!" he said.

"Nothing," said Lolo like a child. Verily do things rise from the past like evil ghosts, thought the man. That cheap and tawdry kiss, given in the gaiety of a reckless moment, came back to damn him now in the one woman's eyes as a worthless trifle. What could she think, what could she feel but a nauseous revulsion, even as he himself felt it?

He looked at Lolo and the sparkle was hard as flintstone in his eyes. The little vixen meant to do the trick she had done, to step between and turn Val from him.

But to his astonishment Val spoke. "Well!" she said, "Valentia is good to all. He has given gold to many, and a kiss is sign-manual of a gentle heart."

The man drew a long breath, held it, let it out.

Lolo flashed a glance at Val then from the shelter of the corner-house to where the horses stood at the steep trail's head. As they paused to mount, Val again put her hand on his shoulder and faced him gravely.

As he followed Val Hannon down the face of Mesa Grande a flood of bitter waters rose and drowned his inner self. Tregrets, remorse, sorrow, they all took hold on him and wrung him a rag between them."

And his head was whirling like a drunkard's with the equine memory of that honest kiss. No matter what happened he would always have that, a precious possession.

And then they reached the bottom of the trail, set deep between huge shafts of rotting stone, and came face to face with Lolo Sanchez on a pinto pony. Dusky, as sunset, full-blown as a flower, very beautiful in a sensuous fashion she sat and looked at them—or at the man rather.

Val she did not seem to see. The bud of her scarlet mouth broke over her small white teeth in a smile that had ravished more hearts than one and she held out one slim hand.

"Master," she said in Spanish, "Lolita roused from his tense reverie, pulled himself together and shook the hand politely."

"How do you do, Lolo," he said. "Como esta V.?" she returned, still in the Spanish, as if by its use she narrowed the interest to themselves.

Valentia turned to Val. "Miss Hannon," he said, "do you know the Señorita Sanchez?"

"No," said Val and smiled. But Lolo did not smile. Instead she took the girl's hand and the other girl was slow, appraising, insistent. The Rose of Santa Leandra had never forgiven the loosening of this man's arm, the slipping of herself out of his consciousness when he glanced up that night at Humpwell's to face John Hannon's daughter. Therefore she hated the woman.

"What matters?" she said. "I am only Lolo of Paradise, too lowly for the Pride of Paradise to see."

With consummate art she dropped her wonderful eyes, and as she said, the meek, the fur beneath. Only Lolo of Leandra—poor in this world's goods, a little sister of the more fortunate. And Valentia was the friend of such.

Val, understanding perfectly, stiffened in her saddle and a slow flush grew in her cheeks.

The girl looked up and all her flower face melted in beauty of tenderness as she smiled at him.

Valentia's nostrils drew in a sharp white line.

"Lolo," he said, "speak English."

"No need," said Val quickly, "I understand."

He did not look at her, though a cold hand gripped at his vitals.

"Well!" he said.

"Nothing," said Lolo like a child. Verily do things rise from the past like evil ghosts, thought the man. That cheap and tawdry kiss, given in the gaiety of a reckless moment, came back to damn him now in the one woman's eyes as a worthless trifle. What could she think, what could she feel but a nauseous revulsion, even as he himself felt it?

He looked at Lolo and the sparkle was hard as flintstone in his eyes. The little vixen meant to do the trick she had done, to step between and turn Val from him.

But to his astonishment Val spoke. "Well!" she said, "Valentia is good to all. He has given gold to many, and a kiss is sign-manual of a gentle heart."

The man drew a long breath, held it, let it out.

Lolo flashed a glance at Val then from the shelter of the corner-house to where the horses stood at the steep trail's head. As they paused to mount, Val again put her hand on his shoulder and faced him gravely.

"Some day," she said softly, "some day—you'll come back to me."

The muscles in Valentia's arms twitched but he held them sterner at his sides. The knuckles on his clenched hands shone pearly white with the effort.

"No," he said thickly, "I am—not the man."

But Miss Hannon, her dark eyes dim with honest tears, leaned forward and kissed him square upon his tight-lipped lips.

"Some day," she said with strange conviction, "you will come back to the church door—and with me."

Then they mounted in silence, and in silence went down the trail to the levels below.

Indian Girls Must Prefer Paleface Names

BY MARIAN HALE
(Special to Post-Crescent)

Picturesque Indian names have become very fashionable for summer resorts and well hunting lodges and for nifty canoes and such things; but among Indian girls they're not a bit fashionable, Suzie Meek says.

Miss Meek is one of the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association's real Indian-born secretaries.

She ranks as an authority on Indian girls today.

"Sun-in-the-eye" much prefers to be known as "Sadie Jones." Her schoolmate likes "Carrie Smith" better than "Dewey Water." So Miss Meek states.

HER PALEFACE FRIENDS

For instance, there's Iva Josephine Rider, daughter of State Senator T. L. Rider of Oklahoma. Miss Rider is a widely known concert singer, one of the stars of the Boston Conservatory of Music. Her Cherokee name is Althea Unkalunt, but very few people outside the Cherokee tribe know it. It's as Josie Rider that she wants her paleface friends to know she has any numbers to know her.

"The Indian girl," says Miss Meek, "has a great respect for her white sisters."

"On the reservations you'll find her with her hair bobbed, wearing French heels and dancing to the same tunes that New Yorkers play on their own phonographs."

LOVES INDIAN MUSIC

"As for music, the Indian girl really loves her own people's folk songs best, but she wants to keep up to the pace set by the city flap."

"What she needs most is an opportunity to find herself—to gain self confidence."

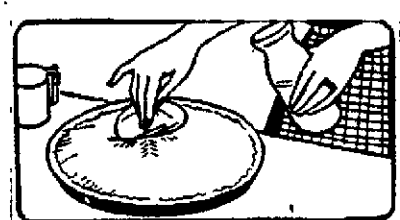

"She seldom gets beyond the sixth grade in school, not from lack of intelligence, but from lack of opportunity. She rarely acquires what we call higher education. The government schools devote half of each day to industrial work—cooking and sewing, for instance. So when the Indian girl finishes her studies, while well trained for housework, she's deficient in the branches which give poise and reliance on her own social accomplishments."

"When she has attained greater cultural development, she'll regret that her native heritage of music and art has been lost or diverted."

Miss Meek shares with Ella De laoria and Ruth Muskrat the distinction of being the only Indian girls on the Y. W. C. A. staff. All three are college educated and eager to share with their own people the advantages they have profited by.

Household Suggestions

YOUR PIES

When you want your pies to be brown on top brush them with milk before you put them in the oven. If you want a nice, shiny, lacquer finish use the white of an egg.

COCOANUT TOO DRY?

Sometimes shredded cocoanut gets very dry standing in the cupboard. It can be freshened and greatly improved by soaking it in sweet milk a few minutes before using it.

KEEPING THEM HANDY

If you will keep an envelope pasted on the inside of your cook book it will take care of the recipes you clip from other sources and you may be able to find them when you want them.

POLISHING IVORY

You can restore the color to ivory-handled knives and forks when they have become discolored or old by rubbing them with very fine sandpaper or emery.

USE HOT WATER

Your linens will keep much better if you wash it in hot, soapy water and dry it with a towel. Drying it on the stove darkens it, and sometimes melts it.

CARE OF WATER BAGS

Even the most expensive of hot-water bags seldom reach a ripe old age. This is largely because they are not cared for properly. If, after each using, you will blow the bag full of air and screw in the stopper you will prevent the sides from sticking together, and consequently from rotting or tearing.

Waste Of Gas To Force Water To Boil Hard

Hard boiling water isn't any hotter than gently boiling water. As soon as soup and vegetables come to a boil turn the burner partly off, just sufficient to keep the food boiling and it will cook as quickly as if it were boiling hard.

Save your paper bags and slip them over your jars of fruit, writing the name of the fruit on the bag. Twist the top of the bag tight. The fruit will keep better and the jars will be free from dust.

When opening a glass of jelly, you may find mold on top. Instead of taking it off with a spoon, dampen a clean cloth and wash it off. You will have no wasted jelly.

Peapods made of metal, if not used for some time, will give a musty flavor to the tea when next used. Put a lump of sugar into the pot before putting away and this will never happen.

If you have trouble with the butter sticking to your butter paddle, rub the moist paddle with salt.

If you open a can of pinicots and only use part of them, place what remains in a jelly glass and cover with melted paraffin. They will keep until you want to use them again.

An old-fashioned wire corn-popper is excellent for washing vegetables and small fruits. The tight lid allows the water from the faucet to run through the fruit from all sides.

To make pancakes without smoke or odor, make a little salt bag and rub the gridiron with it in place of fat. The cakes will not stick and there will be no smoke or odor.

To keep cream from spattering and leaving grease spots when whipped, take a piece of waxed paper, cut a hole in it to fit over the egg beater and place it over the bowl.—From the February Designer

Can't Build Too Many Closets In Your House

Closets are a boon to every housekeeper's working hours. One can scarcely conceive of a house with too many closets. Closets for clothes, for hats, for shoes, for brooms and tools—closets for everything that would otherwise clutter up the tables and chairs and floors.

Few houses built nowadays are without bedroom closets, but the builder often overlooks the advantages which closets in nooks and corners provide to the careful housekeeper.

Space for a broom closet often may be found at the head of the cellar stairway. If a door twenty-four inches wide instead of thirty inches, leading to the stairway, is used, a space is left over the stone wall which will provide a closet for brooms, mops and vacuum cleaner. Suitable dimensions are 14 inches deep, 5 feet high and 2 feet wide.

In the kitchen, cupboards below and above the sink cannot be too spacious. If wall space does not permit of a kitchen cabinet, small cupboards built in the wall on both sides of the window over the kitchen work table are convenient for holding spices and various small containers.

An ironing board that fits into a closet in the wall is another convenience. A small drawer placed beneath may hold the electric iron.

Often a hollow space is left at one side of the chimney over the mantel-piece. If the reverse wall of the fireplace comes in the dining room, this hollow space is an excellent nook in which to install a closet for table linens.

In the houses that are not built on the central hall plan the stairway generally leads from the living room without vestibule, where wraps may be hung. The landing, however, offers opportunity for installing a cloak closet. Built into the wall, it may be five or six inches deep and the width of the landing, from three to three and one-half feet. Wraps and umbrellas may be placed out of sight within its doors. A drawer below the door may be used for rubbers.

Few bathrooms are without small cabinets for toilet articles. If this room is large enough a linen closet of ample size should be installed. Or, a closet opening up into the hall near the bathroom. When so constructed it is possible to take the space for it from one side of an adjoining bedroom closet.

A storage box on the back porch serves as a tool chest and also a seat, where one may enjoy the fresh air of summer days while preparing the vegetables.

Adventures Of The Twins

Nancy Sings Song of Glee

It was Nancy's turn to sing a song. Nick had been singing about the good fairies who had helped them on their adventures.

Nancy and Nick, you know, were on their way to Fairyland, riding in a magic automobile. They were very happy, as their troubles appeared to be over.

"I'll sing a song now, Nickie," laughed Nancy. "Let's see, what shall it be about? Oh, yes, I know. I'll sing about the bad fairies who have tried to stop us on our travels."

So she began:

"Oh, Twelve Toes, the Sorcerer, lives in a cave, He really doesn't know how to behave. He practices magic with hop toads and lizards. And think he's the smartest of all the old wizards."

"Tis cousin, the dream maker lives on a star. His name's Eena Meena, he's known near and far. He fashions queer dreams with sly skill and cunning. Folks say when he whistles the night-mare comes running."

"Down deep in a valley lives Halloo-Hallo."

He's been living there since a long time ago. He fools with the echoes and changes them round. Till you're mixed up completely about every sound.

"There's Comet-Legs, too, who rides on a star. One minute he's near, the next minute he's far. He fools with the weather, tampers too with the Moon. And he never seems tired from September to June."

"Another bad fairy is Mr. Light Fingers. Who is always in trouble wherever he lingers. And then there is Mr. Flap-Doodle, my dear. The mischievous fairy, who flies with his ears."

Nancy sang on and on, but I've no more room to tell you.

WORKS BOTH WAYS

"Well, if you can work yourself into a state of physical repulsiveness by a mental process then why can't you do the reverse—elevate yourself by concentration on beautiful thoughts and, by the elimination of malicious, devastating emotions, to a state where you'll reflect loveliness?"

"I know it can be done. I have seen girls taken from ugly environments, surrounded by beauty and transformed facially almost beyond recognition."

TESTED RECIPES

Lent is here. Two days a week may well be given up to a meatless diet. Or, if not entirely eliminated, meat may be eaten in smaller quantity by combining it with various starchy foods.

For instance, the Italian method of serving spaghetti with a good tomato sauce containing a little meat, plus vegetable soup and a green salad, furnishes a sufficient, satisfying dinner.

The pilafs so much used by oriental people containing rice and a small amount of meat, dumplings, and stew with a little meat and many vegetables, the Chinese chow mein and the Mexican chili con carne or tamales are other examples of good food with a minimum meat allowance.

Hard boiled, either plain or with yolks removed, combined with seasonings and replaced in the whites in a cream sauce, eggs are good.

Omelets may be served with mushrooms, spinach, onions or puree of tomatoes, highly seasoned.

Combined with cheese and milk, seasoned with salt, pepper and onion, eggs may be baked as a custard. When turned from cup or dish serve with a cream sauce, plain or combined with cooked vegetables.

In short, with good eggs in the house, the possibilities for a good meal to be enjoyed are almost endless.

BUILDS HOME ON SKYSCRAPER ROOF

BY MARIAN HALE
New York—Marcelle Carroll has the whole world at her feet. Yes, really! Quite at her feet. And all because Earl Carroll wanted to give his wife something entirely different.

"I couldn't see myself taking Marcelle into a house, four walls set on the earth with a lot of smoke blowing over it," says Carroll.

"And so he built this heaven-kissing place, where all I need do is put my head out of my boudoir window and let cloud-mist curl my hair!" adds Mrs. Carroll.

Carroll, who at 23 built the $3,000, 000 Earl Carroll theater and opened it with his own play, built a bungalow, right in the heart of New York for his bride.

The exquisite little place, which he named the Starlit Bungalow, is on the roof of a 21-story building at Seventh avenue and Fifth-street near Broadway. It is quite as complete as any country home could be.

There are a sun parlor with a beautiful fountain, living room, dining room, kitchen, bedroom, boudoir and study. There's a place for a garden, too. When summer really arrives there'll be such things as roses, tomatoes and strawberries growing in the Carrolls' real roof garden.

Mrs. Carroll is intensely interested in the work of her young husband. But she draws a line at his study door.

PLEATED SKIRTS

The accordion-pleated skirt evidently is to take a prominent place in spring and summer fashions. It is seen with Eton jackets, and with jacquette blouses and sweaters in silk or in wool crepes.

Do Your Hands Tell Kitchen Secrets?

Beautiful hands now for the woman who does her own work. A new idea in soap.

Frankly, suppose you met a woman, say at a bridge party, and you couldn't help noticing how ugly and red her hands were—would you consider her charming?

Three women in four have ugly hands, because of using harsh, strong soaps for dishwashing and other housework. And no woman with ugly hands can be attractive!

Unnecessary!

Now, even though you do every bit of your own work—down to the family washing—you can have the charm of lovely hands.

Avoid the use of strong household soaps. Never put your hands in suds made by these destroyers of skin fabric. Most of them contain 25 to 50% silicate of soda. This usually contains an excess of caustic—and it is this adulterant—not soap—that ruins your hands.

Most of the popular laundry soaps contain "filler." A chemical analysis of 28 brands showed "filler" in 27 of them.

Here it is

For years our chemists have been working on a laundry soap which would have superlative cleansing qualities without destructive qualities. At last we have made a soap which is unexcelled for the purpose. It is GREEN ARROW. It contains Olive Oil and other effective cleansing ingredients. While wonderfully effective as a cleanser it will not harm the hands nor the most delicate fabrics.

5c per month—for beautiful hands

Yet Green Arrow costs little more than old-time, hand-wrecking soaps.

Don't figure the cost of soaps at so much per bar. That is misleading. Green Arrow goes twice as far. Figure it at so much per month. It will cost you only about 5c a month more.

Do today as thousands of other women: Protect your hands with Green Arrow Soap. Your grocer has it.

Why Tell the World you do your own work?

Rough, ugly hands tell a story to the world. A story of the kitchen, the laundry, the scrub bucket.

Most women do housework. But few want to tell it to every chance acquaintance.

Most laundry soaps contain 25 to 50% water glass. This adulterant, technically known as silicate of soda, is invariably accompanied by an excess of caustic. It is this "filler"—not soap—that ruins hands. Green Arrow is made with the precision of a toilet soap and is pure soap.

Now you can have white and lovely hands regardless of how much kitchen work you do.

For your hands and your clothes sake, go to your grocer and insist on buying GREEN ARROW.

GERMANS COULD WAGE WAR ONLY AS GUERRILLA ARMY

Situation Does Not Permit Of Elaborate Fighting Machinery
For Aggression

Washington—The Germans, known since the beginning of modern warfare as the world's most orderly and methodical fighters, may become the world's most disorderly fighters.

This is the prophecy of experts of the War Plans Division of the United States army general staff who have given careful study to the military situation in Germany.

The intensively drilled Prussian soldier may become a super-guerrilla carrying on irregular fighting of a type hitherto unknown, they say.

All this, if Germany, goaded by the French encroachments, decides to replace its present passive resistance with active resistance.

Army regulations prohibit these officers from being quoted directly. But I am able to present a digest of the opinions of high officers secured in a series of interviews.

CAN'T RISK NEW WAR

"Germany knows she cannot match arms with France in a new war," these officers agree.

"She has no heavy artillery, no tanks, no aircraft.

"She has an army of 100,000, allowed by the treaty, and guard and police forces that might serve as nuclei for reorganization of a considerable part of the old army.

"Granted she had even large quantities of rifles, machine guns and even small artillery hidden away, it is certain she has not now and can not obtain quickly heavier fighting equipment—artillery, airplanes, tanks—to confront France along a given line.

NO NATURAL LINE

"Also beyond the Rhine, there is no natural line of resistance on this side of the Elbe. And at stand at the Elbe would leave more than half of Germany in French occupation.

"Even should the army of Russia, reputed at 1,000,000, join hands with Germany, still France would be military master.

"With a highly organized and equipped army of 500,000, with artillery, aircraft and chemical warfare equipment and material in abundance, France could sweep through Germany as Germany swept through Belgium.

"The German knows the futility of any attempted general military resistance.

"But, deprived of materials for his factories, fuel for his homes and industries, it is possible even the disciplined, stoical German would reach a stage of frenzy and desperation which would goad him to open revolt even in the face of recognized military disaster.

"In that event German resistance would doubtless take the form of a super-guerrilla warfare, with no large concentration of troops, no battles fought to conclusive victories, but constant raids, slashing, jabbing, wearing down of French resistance by necessitating the maximum effort by France to maintain her occupation.

"Such a situation does not fit in with German psychology. He does not want to invite ruin to his cities, disaster to his industries. He likes to fight like he works, in an orderly, definitely planned method. Only in desperation may he be expected to forget the ruin resistance now would be certain to bring.

YOUTHS CONFESS THEY MURDERED 'GOOD SAMARITAN'

Urge Of Desert Led First To Robbery, Then Slaying,
Boys Said

Special To Post-Crescent.
El Centro, Cal.—The desert does queer things to men.

Many have whispered of its mirage madness, its grinning skulls, its singular feuds and unspeakable crimes.

And now, in the brutish murder of Leslie Nichols, good Samaritan of the road, charged against Charlie Davis and Lawrence C. Campbell, whom he had given a ride, desert veterans see the most horrid evidence of its spell.

"A killing as senseless as it was cold blooded," said Sheriff C. L. Gillette guarding from the wrath of imperial county the 17-year old slayers, according to their asserted confession. Possession of Nichols' auto and watch caused their arrest. They led officers to the mutilated body.

JUST A NOTION

"We just got the notion as we drove along," said the boys trying to cover bewilderment with bravado. "We only started to rob the guy."

Davis of Birmingham, Ala., and Campbell of Marquette, Mich., had started across the Colorado desert, as they tell the story—broke, out of a job, hooding it.

The mesquite wilderness with its scuttling lizards and shadows hot as light, scoffed at restraints. It was a strange world for city boys, with out a cop in a hundred miles and with nothing to check primal impulses.

"Have a ride, boys," proffered Nichols, traveling adjutant of an insurance company, short cutting between highways in his flivver.

"Will we—say, I'll tell a guy! Hot as the huggies of hell, ain't it?"

The good Samaritan brought out smokes and matches. He looked at his watch, eager to get back to his wife in Los Angeles.

Davis and Campbell looked at it, too.

And then the desert nudged them with a suggestion.

They halted for a drink of water. Again the desert nudged: A thousand square miles of trackless sand, and this defenseless man with a watch, some money and an auto to get away in.

As Nichols stooped to drink, one of the boys, according to the alleged confession, cracked him on the head with a rock.

"A fine way to 'treat a friend,'" dazedly muttered the victim as they striped him naked. Then, says the confession, they shot him. He staggered off. They cracked him again with rocks, and shot, many times, covering the body with sand, police quote them as saying.

His watch they pawned for $7 at the nearest town.

RECENT TALE CALMLY

In the shadow of the gallows here, under threats of lynching, they recounted the tale without emotion, arguing only as to who had fired the fatal shot, according to Sheriff Gillette.

"But why did you kill Nichols? You could have robbed him without that. Did he put up a fight?"

"Naw," said Davis, "he didn't fight. I d'no why—" with a shrug. "And he was a good guy, too—gave us cigarettes and everything—, I d'no."

"It takes sound character to stand even a little of the desert," suggested the old sand rovers gathered here for the trial, "because the lying desert always says, 'There's nobody to see or hear what you do here.'"

FEWER STAGE DOOR JOHNNIES ABROAD

Prohibition And H. C. L. Appear
To Drive Away Back
Door Loafers

New York—With the high cost of bootleg whiskey putting the Stage Door Johnnie out of business, Broadway's back door is beginning to creak like a rusty gate.

Where once a long line of beaming toppers stood, waiting for the ladies of the chorus, now sits old Bill Riley—alone. And he doesn't like it. Riley is Broadway's oldest backstage watch dog. He is 71 and has been a figure on the alleys off the Great White Way for so many years that he has lost count of them.

"Maybe a Stage-Door Mary will be coming along soon," he says hopefully. "But it isn't very likely. There's even scarcer than the Johnnies."

"Prohibition and the high cost of lobbyists is scarier," he says.

"In the old days when they used to drive up with a hack and a smile, it didn't cost so much to have a good time."

TIMES SURE HAVE CHANGED

"But now, a fellow had better buy his pack of cigarettes before he goes into a restaurant or cabaret. No matter how much money he may have, there probably won't be enough left to buy the smokes after."

"Things have gotten so that I haven't seen a real honest-to-goodness John around here for more than four years."

"Maybe it's the girls' fault, too. They aren't going in much for just a feed and drinks. They want expensive fineries—fur coats, Paris dresses, and the like."

"Did you notice the line of small shops in the hotels and side streets? That's what's breaking the Johnnies."

"Instead of taking him to a lobster palace, the girls lead him into one of these stores and make him and his bankroll look sick."

"No ordinary Johnnie can keep up the pace—it takes a John D."

Merchant Vessels Of The World

Report Shows

By Associated Press.
London.—The total tonnage of merchant vessels afloat at the end of June, 1922, holding the classification of Lloyds Register, exceeded 27,000,000 tons, the highest figure ever recorded, according to the annual report of "Lloyds Register of Shipping." To these figures should be added 236 vessels of 1,524,013 tons under the heading of "class contemplated," which brings the aggregate to 10,325 vessels of 28,750,000 tons. On the first total 5,878 vessels of 13,724,562 tons are British, and 4,151 of 13,506,562 tons belong to other countries.

CARBON MONOXIDE IS MENACE TO AUTOISTS

Buffalo—A lungful of carbon monoxide is just as deadly as a draught of carbolic acid to which it is related, Dr. Francis E. Fronczak, health physician, says in a bulletin issued to automobile owners.

"It is strange," Dr. Fronczak says, "in spite of all that has been said on the subject, how automobile owners are generally ignorant of the dangers of this gas."

"Steel and iron workers know its properties and avoid inhaling it as they would avoid drinking a deadly poison, yet the motorist thinks of it only as an ordinary gas."

"Illuminating gas, which we are careful to turn off, suffocates, but does not poison like carbon monoxide, which is just as apt to kill as the chlorine and mustard gases used during the war."

TWO HIGH SCHOOL BASKET GAMES IN ARMORY TONIGHT

WEST GREEN BAY AND KAUKAUNA IN BIG DOUBLEHEADER

First Team Plays Final Conference Game—Seconds To Play Electric City

CONFERENCE STANDINGS

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Shelbygan	6	0	1.000
Appleton	5	1	.833
Oshkosh	3	2	.600
Fond du Lac	4	4	.500
Manitowish	2	5	.285
East Green Bay	1	4	.200
West Green Bay	1	6	.142

FRIDAY NIGHT'S GAMES
West Green Bay at Appleton.
Oshkosh at Fond du Lac.

A double attraction is in store for Appleton basketball fans Friday night. The first and second teams of the high school are scheduled to clash in the armory, with the regular meeting West Green Bay in the final Fox River valley conference game, and the Seconds will play a preliminary game with the first team from Kaukauna.

SECONDS HAVE CLASS
The Seconds, who haven't lost a game and who will fill the places to be vacated by the regulars on account of graduation in June, are playing a mighty fine game. In many respects they excel the first team, particularly in the offensive department. Kohl and Courtney, forwards, play a swift passing game that penetrates the best defense. Hillman is center on the quietest, and Vaughn, Voigt and Boehme are the guards. The work of Voigt is particularly good and he has been given a chance to relieve the first team guards several times. Voigt is a senior.

Practice has been redoubled this week. Green Bay met Appleton earlier in the season and naturally the Bay men are acquainted with some of the tactics of the Blue and Orange. A slight change of paces has been introduced by Coach Denney.

BAY HAS NEW COMBINATION
The West Green Bay lineup has been strengthened by the shifting of Captain Verdyette to forward. The new combination, with Rondon holding down the other post; Clark at center and Hansen and Blindauer on the defensive ends, proved satisfactory and very effective in a game Wednesday with North Fond du Lac at Green Bay, which the Westsiders won 26 to 19.

Mills and Heideman may no doubt start off at the forward posts Friday night. Captain Asman will be at the pivot position. Briggs and Hendon will be stationed at the guard posts. Lutz will be held in reserve.

Donald Beyer will referee. The first game will start at 7:15.

Saturday morning Coach Denney will leave for Gladstone, Mich. with eight cagers to play the undefeated Gladstone school.

HOPES FOR BADGER AND MICHIGAN BALL WHEEL STILL ALIVE

Presidency Is Offered To Moll, Former Scout For Milwaukee Brewers

They are still talking about a Wisconsin-Michigan basketball league and what's more backers of the plan are trying to induce Charles F. Moll, the veteran scout for the Milwaukee Brewers to become the czar of their proposed league. But Moll is too busy preparing to leave for south where he will be president of the Southwestern league, and doesn't care to meddle with the infant organization. However, the former Brewster scout thinks the league would be a winner and figures that Appleton, Green Bay, Marinette-Menominee and other up-state Michigan towns are best fitted for the organization. Moll who makes his home in De Pere declares that the Michigan cities are ready to "go" and expects that the Wisconsin towns will be canvassed next week by the booster organization.

In an interview with a Milwaukee scribe, Moll says: "I am sure this league would be a winner, financially. The Michigan club owners want me to take the presidency, but I will be too busy with my position as head of the Southwestern league to accept. However, I will help them get the league started and it is likely that a meeting of those interested will be held in Milwaukee early next week."

Moll, recently elected to the presidency of the Southwestern, will leave for his new hunting grounds early next week.

INFANT BOWLING WHIZ SHOOT'S WONDER GAME

Neenah—Neenah has an infant bowling wonder, Jackie Parkman, aged 8, son of Harry Parkman, manager of local bowling alleys, is the cradle phenom. In 48 games Jackie has rolled up an average of 190. One night last week he rolled a 173 game. He is contemplating issuing a sweeping challenge of kid champions of the country.

THINKS RYAN WILL BE SELECTED COACH OF BADGER ELEVEN

Former Marquette Man Will Get Job, Says Madison Sport Expert

Jack Ryan, who is known to every football fan for his leadership of the Marquette university eleven, will be coach of Wisconsin. This is the opinion of Tommy Thompson, sporting editor of the Madison State Journal. Writing about the matter in his paper recently he says:

Four coaching prospects have been brought to Madison and one of those four will lead the 1923 Wisconsin team. After summing up the possibilities of each of the men, Jack Ryan looks like the best bet.

Anxious followers can almost rest assured that he will guide the destinies of the team. Team members and Wisconsin alumni can begin to make their plans for the welcome of the former Marquette man.

OFFER SMALL PAY
Of the four men who were favored, Page would be the man that the council would have picked if the job paid enough to make it worth while for him to change. But due to the small salary here, it doesn't look like it would be possible to get him, unless the plans are changed.

Hughes doesn't appear to have the qualities that would boost the Wisconsin stock in the conference. His teams have been among the leaders in the western loop, but he played the game in a school, which has never been recognized as a leader in the sport and his teams have never met real fast eleven. Nebraska was the only stiff team on the schedule as they always defeated the Hughes aggregation.

Ofstie seems to be out of the running. No statement has been made of that effect, but general appearance seem to give the impression that he will not be the man. His ability to build up an offensive style of play would fit in well here, however.

With the three of the four men favored out of the way for one reason and another, the field now looks like it was lowered to one man, Ryan.

HAS GOOD RECORD
Ryan has a good record, will be available the year around, and will come for the small salary that is offered.

When the resignation of John Richards was made public a hope flickered among the alumni and public that a man would be brought here who would be big enough to draw a salary equal to any school in the country.

That hope was killed when the authorities began their search for a small college man. Jack Henderson, wants to come here but less than half his present salary, could hardly be considered an offer.

There are other big men in the country who are available but the Wisconsin backers can only hope that Jack Ryan will prove the demon on the gridiron here that he has in the past.

Who knows, if he is brought here, but what may be the sensation of the country?

Girl Fan's Kiss Breaks Up High School Quintet

Detroit—The Hamtramck high school basketball team has disbanded, quick like that. Director of Athletics Fred Jacks canceled the game with St. Mary team. According to Mr. Jacks, three players were recently dismissed from the team by Principal Corey because they kissed a fair admirer of the school. When Principal Corey failed to lift the ban, the three culprits turned in their uniforms and other members of the team refused to touch another ball until the culprits are reinstated.

Age Doesn't Bother Him

WALTER JOHNSON

Walter Johnson, famous hurler of the Washington Americans, is the oldest pitcher in either of the big leagues in point of service. Johnson broke into the big show in 1907, and therefore has seen 16 years of activity in the main tent, all of which have been spent in a Senator uniform.

During that time the once great baseball king has hung up many sizeable records, despite the fact that he has always been under the handicap of working for a club which has been a consistent loser—a second-division outfit.

There is no telling what Johnson might have accomplished on the mound had he been supported by a winning aggregation. Doubtless he would have established some marks which would have been hard to equal, let alone surpass.

But regardless of the destiny of fate, Johnson's career has been an exceptionally brilliant one. In fact, many of the present-day records are held by the Washington star, who by the way, is one of the few "big game" hurlers who has never participated in a world series, because Washington has yet to win its first pennant.

Johnson's best year was in 1913, when he won 36 games and lost but 7, a percentage of .837. Incidentally, still be good for several more seasons this stands as the third highest average of big league service.

Two changes in the leaders divisions of the Elks state bowling tournament were recorded as the result of the attack on the maples Thursday night.

Boosters, hailing from New London, with an aggregate total of 2,713 went into fifth place in the five-man event, forcing down the Elk-Kare quint, Oshkosh, with its 2,702 pins, to sixth position. Verheyden and Parmentier, Green Bay Elks, assembled 1,189 maples in the doubles event for third place, also dislodging Oshkosh bowlers, Bestler and Rasmussen.

HAIR STAYS COMBED, GLOSSY

"Hair-Groom" Keeps Hair Combed—Well-Groomed

A few cents buys jar of "Hair-Groom" at any druggists, which makes even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stay combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions.

Grossness, staleness "Hair-Groom" does not show on the hair because it is absorbed by the scalp, therefore your hair remains so soft and pliable and so natural that no one can possibly tell you used it.

The work of the New London Boosters was ordinary with none of the bowlers going above six hundred and two of them shooting below 500.

APPLETON MEN ROLL
Four Appleton crack bowlers, "Frosty" Johnston, Gearson, Koerner and Currie, members of the famous Rainbow Gardens, which romped off with the five-man prize in 1922 with 2,901 pins, took a whack at the singles and doubles events Thursday night, leaving the team shooting for a later date. The Appleton stars didn't do everything that was expected though Johnston broke into the leaders divisions with 606 pins in the singles. He is in eighth place. Lady Luck went visiting somewhere else as soon as the Appleton bowlers stepped on the boards (Alibi furnished without request). Splish, splash, frequent. A change of alleys in order to make room for out of town "Bills" worked some hardship on the Paper City men.

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED
Johnston started off with 231 pins in the first game, he got 182 and 192 in the next games which gave him his 606. "Frosty" had a dandy chance to go in the big money but some of the splits that he established for himself required the widest alley brush in the place. Here are the complete accomplishments:

LAWRENCE LEAVES FOR CARROLL TILT

Game Tonight Will Complete Little Five Schedule—9 Players Make Journey

Coach H. D. McChesney and nine basketball men left for Waukesha at 10:27 Friday morning where they are scheduled to meet Carroll college in the evening for the final Little Five contest of the season.

Although beaten by Carroll here two weeks ago in a heartbreaking game, the Lawrentians left fully prepared to turn tables on the Waukesha outfit. Carroll has been a surprise this season, having defeated nearly all of its opponents with the exception of Beloit, Little Five champions.

The work in the Ripon game Tuesday, raised the hopes of the Lawrence followers that the Blue and White will close the season with a win. Those making the trip to Waukesha were Cook, Sund, Kotal, Puchner, Basing Jacobson, Zussman, Collins and Christoph.

MILWAUKEE FIGHT RESULTS

WOMEN START CAMPAIGN FOR CLUB BUILDING

NEW PICTURE OF WASHINGTON IS UNVEILED AT 'Y'

Celebration At Y. M. C. A. Is Attended By More Than 150 Persons

More than 150 persons attended the patriotic celebration of Washington's birthday at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening. The feature of the program was the unveiling of a Stuart portrait of Washington by George F. Werner, general secretary.

Mr. Werner called attention to the policy of the board of directors in placing appropriate pictures in the Y. M. C. A., the first of which was that of Lincoln, unveiled on the anniversary of his birthday.

A third portrait, that of Roosevelt, with his last message, has been secured from the American Defense society and will soon be unveiled on the boys' division, said Mr. Werner.

The unveiling of the portrait preceded a short address on George Washington by Dr. D. O. Kinsman of Lawrence college who emphasized the lessons which the life and spirit of Washington taught.

MUSIC ON PROGRAM
The program was held in the lobby and opened with music by the H-Y orchestra. Community singing was led by C. L. Boynton. The closing song was "America."

The basketball game between the girls' teams of Thimpany Pulp & Paper company and Kimberly mill of Kimberly-Clark company was won by the former by a score of 23 to 16. Ada Olm and Lillian Beardon were the stars for the former team, each getting five baskets. Lillian Sorenson and "Bobbie" Peters of the latter team each made three baskets.

Miss Emily Adams was referee on exhibition under the supervision of Everett Wright. It included four events, fancy diving, relay race, demonstration of fancy strokes and water polo game and several special features. Those participating in the exhibition were John Williams, Edward Nistris, Victor Jensen, Gerry White, Robert Moore, Mr. Rich and Mr. Aldrich.

The program closed with the serving of coffee and doughnuts by Miss Latschar of the Y. M. C. A. cafeteria, who was assisted by Mrs. C. L. Boynton, Mrs. George F. Werner and Miss Helen Werner.

kind of work in which she is interested shall have and she knows this requires room for more expansion. The organization of this department has followed the same lines as that of the entire club and chairman have gone right to work to add their part to the fund. Miss Lynda Hummel will be chairman of the girls in the bowling league and the Tuttle Press club; Miss Marian Ingenthon, chairman, gymnastics classes, volleyball, basketball teams and the basketball club; Miss Kathleen McCabe, chairman, athletic, social and folk dancing classes; Pine Tree club and Woodcraft league; Stephanie Schumacher, chairman, glee club, dramatic workshop, TM TM club.

Another group of girls which will derive benefit from the building and which will be willing to do its bit for the building is the girl scout and camp fire groups. A representative will be appointed from the girl scouts and from the camp fire girls to act as chairmen of these divisions. These will be appointed at joint meetings of all troops and of all camp fire soon.

ENTHUSIASM GROWS
Although the members of the club at large and of the recreation department do not know how much money will be needed nor what kind of building the executive committee is planning, the spirits of the club have risen to great enthusiasm over night. Each division is already at work on its plans for making money, leaving the details of the building program to the executive committee until it is time to make them public.

Miss Esther Ingenthon was chairman of the supper committee of the sports council meeting on Thursday evening. The council also discussed plans for Sunday cozies. The Misses Elsie Mau and Florence Beamon were appointed to the supper committee for March. The next meeting of the council will take place in two weeks since the plans have become so numerous that a month's business cannot be conducted in one meeting.

Thursday was a typical day to demonstrate the great need of a building for the club. At noon, 80 women were served luncheon in the club room. The mass meeting followed, when the building program was outlined. Before that meeting was over, the TM TM club came in for its regular meeting. At 5 o'clock, the supper committee or the sports council came in to prepare the meal and at 6 o'clock, 39 members of the council arrived. After the council meeting, the high school camp fire girls had a party.

Police Buy Chandler to Chase Thieves
Automobile thieves who have visions of making get-aways after "jobs" in Milwaukee are due to an awakening according to Walter English, head of the motor theft bureau of the police department.

English has just been furnished with a new Chandler Six speedster, equipped with the speedy Pike's Peak type of motor with which to pursue bandits who hope to make a killing on Milwaukee streets.

The Chandler was selected after speed and endurance tests with a dozen other cars, English says, and he backs it to overtake any stock car on the road.

Moscow Riots To Glimpse At Fluffy Lingerie

By Associated Press
Moscow—Moscow is rapidly assuming some of its old time splendor in the shopping district; so far as the stores are concerned it is becoming normal.

The most expensive French and German perfumes, toilet articles, lingerie and other luxuries, after an absence of many years, are again on sale in Moscow. Petrograd and some of the other Russian cities. While the greater part of these goods, according to officials, have been smuggled into the country, nevertheless they are sold openly as in pre-revolutionary days, but at enormous prices. Government officials, while aware of the smuggling, say they are powerless to break it up.

When the first fluffy, lace trimmed garments from abroad appeared in the display windows of the Moscow shops the incident nearly caused a riot. Men, women and children were wildly eager to get a peek at the things from the outer world. They had seen nothing of the kind for seven or eight years, and fought for a place in the mob for a few minutes' gaze at the finery.

Most of the luxuries are three or four times as expensive here as in London and Paris. This, dealers say, is due to the government monopoly on goods from abroad which keeps prices so high that the smuggling business is paying handsomely to those engaged in it.

FIRE RAGING IN RICH LEAD-SILVER MINE

By Associated Press
Wallace, Idaho—Fire which broke out on the 400 foot level of the Hercules mine at Wallace, Idaho, Thursday night was believed to be under control at an early hour Friday, according to a telephone message to the Press Times here.

The fire was discovered at 10:30 and within thirty minutes all miners had been cleared to the surface and accounted for.

The Hercules helmet crew started work at once. The fighters were joined by a crew from the nearby Hacia mine and later by men from the Tamarack mine and the Morning mine at Mulliken.

The Hercules is the property of the Day Brothers. It has paid dividends since 1901, totalling over $14,000,000.

PARIS STREETS WILL BE NAMED AFTER AMERICANS

By Associated Press
Paris—The participation of the American Expeditionary Force in the European war will be duly commemorated in the nomenclature of the streets of Paris.

The municipal council soon will resume the task of renaming some 200 of the city's thoroughfares and, according to French custom, the leading figures in the war will be freely honored. Thus far only General Gallieni, the defender of Paris, Guynemer, the "Ace of Aces" in aviation, and Colonel Bonnet, who distinguished himself at Soissons, have been the honored. General Pershing was on the list that was under consideration when the work was suspended on account of objections to the abolition of old names because of sentimental or historical reasons. Pershing, Clemenceau, Foch and other leaders are on the new list however.

There still remains a score of streets in Paris with German and Austrian names that may never be changed. Included are the rues Breda, Wagner, Mozart, and Palatine, the rue de Vienna and the Place Budapest. Streets that recall German musicians and poets probably will be left unchanged.

Paris streets and squares with American names at present are Avenue President Wilson runs Lincoln, Franklin, Louisiana and Washington, and the Place des Etats Unis.

WHAT DOES WOMAN'S INTUITION WHISPER?

It must be woman's intuition that whispers the coquettish tilt of her hat; stands at her elbow when she selects the shade of fabric that best complements her coloring.

But no "sixth sense" need prompt her in idealizing those lovely lines of hers. Good judgment will tell her to be fitted with a Modart Corset.

There are nearly a million women who wear just one kind of corset—the Modart—and not one will give you the usual woman's answer, "because," if questioned about the matter of corsetry.

They have very definite reasons for wearing the Modart, for it does just what a corset should do and does nothing it shouldn't. That's the skill of Modart design. The Modart wearer has none of that constricted look or feeling.

Every type of figure will find a Modart—just the proper Modart—to bring out the ideal lines. And it fits splendidly—just smooth and perfect curves that follow the figure and the fashion as well.

Women might choose the Modart because it is so dainty and feminine and perfectly tailored. But they go on wearing the Modart because it gives so much better lines and so much more comfort than they ever believed a corset could. That is because there is no other corset like the Modart.

Modart Corsets

Your travels may take you from New York to Palm Beach, from Bar Harbor to the Golden Gate. Wherever you go, among the gay throngs on the promenade, women more sedate in lineaments, or colorful figures about the getting grays, you are sure to find Modart Corsets worn. Furnishing the background of quiet good taste in the character of delicate frocks or gowns, Modart Corsets are always in fashion—the choice of fastidious women.

Always True to Line
